Solicitor Dorsey Closes Argument Opposing Commutation of Sentence--Conley Admits Writing Part of Carter Notes

HEARING RESUMED AT 2:30 IN AFTERNOON

Layers Accompany Governor to Pencil Factory During Recess of Hearing--Dr. Wilmer Appeal for Clemency

Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey completed his argument before the governor against the commutation of the sentence of Leo M. Frank at 1 o'clock, having spoken practically since 9 o'clock. When a recess was taken until 2:30 Governor Slaton, accompanied by Attorney W. M. Howard, the solicitor and Detective Starnes, visited the National Pencil factory, where Mary Phagan was killed. Mr. Howard will probably make the closing argument for Frank Monday afternoon, after which the governor will take the case under advisement.

The only other speaker Monday morning besides the solicitor was Dr. C. B. Wilmer, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church. He urged the governor to commute Frank's sentence.

By questions from Governor Slaton it was developed from Solicitor Dorsey during the morning that Jim Conley now admits writing part of the Annie Maud Carter letters, but claims that some of the obscene words in them were inserted by someone else. When Conley first got his freedom he stoutly protested to reporters, in the presence of the solicitor, that he did not write these letters.

Governor Slaton Monday morning resumed the hearing of Leo M. Frank's petition for commutation of sentence from death to life imprisonment, which was commenced Saturday morning and adjourned over Saturday afternoon.

During Sunday Governor Slaton studied the record of the Frank trial, believing this use of the Sabbath was justifiable because the case is one of life or death, and for the further reason that he must leave the city Tuesday morning and wants to finish the hearing Monday if possible.

Solicitor Dorsey, when the hearing was resumed, submitted a written brief in opposition to the granting of Frank's petition, and followed this with an oral argument. The brief was sixty typewritten pages in length.

It was announced by Solicitor Dorsey that he had received a telegram from Major C. E. McGregor, of Warrenton, Ga., who had intended to come to Atlanta Monday and appear before the governor in opposition to the petition, saying he would not be here.

This was taken to mean that the only speech Monday in opposition to the petition would be the speech of Solicitor Dorsey.

When the latter has finished Attorney William M. Howard, of Augusta, will close the argument in behalf of Frank.

ROOM FILLED.

Shortly after 9 o'clock the attorneys entered the private office of Governor Slaton, and the doors were then thrown open, as on Saturday, to accommodate spectators. A crowd of 75 or 100 jammed into the small remaining space.

It was announced that Dr. C. B. Wilmer, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church of Atlanta, and W. Woods White, the well-known Atlanta lawyer, wished to be heard (supposedly in behalf of Frank), and they were given seats near the governor's desk.

Attorney Howard handed the governor the original notes, and the governor then told Solicitor Dorsey to proceed with his argument, asking him to present at the conclusion of his argument some petitions which he had in his hand and which of the court decisions in the case.

Solicitor Dorsey said:

"Your excellency, I was very much disappointed that the gentlemen rested their case in the beginning on a statement of what they expect to argue. In view of the verdict of the jury and the adjudication of the court, I thought that in fairness they would go forward fully. They have seen fit, however, to give this more the appearance of a technical court matter. I am not intending to go exhaustively into the case. I covered the ground contentions in my speech to the jury. A copy of what you have asked for and which I submit. There are, however, additional matters to show the guilt of Leo M. Frank, and I will go into them.

"This petition for mercy is based upon three grounds, I understand, that the defendant was not accorded a fair trial. Second, that the evidence did not show him guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. Third, that Judge Roan was not convinced of his guilt.

"In his appeals the defendant's attorneys have said that it was humanly impossible for Frank, under the circumstances existing at the trial to get a fair trial. I call your excellency's attention to the fact that they made no motion for a change of venue. It is inconceivable that counsel for Frank, prominent criminal lawyers, and familiar with the people of this county, permitted him to go to trail here if it was humanly impossible for him to be given a fair trial here.

"The court on its own motion could have ordered a change of venue. The record in this case shows that at the trial the disorder was not more than the disorder which is usual at any large gathering. The defense at first did not contend that there was any serious disorder, but they began to make objections only when the conclusiveness of the state's evidence became apparent. Even then no motion for a new trial was made, until after the arguments had been rendered."

DECISION READ.

At this point Solicitor Dorsey read from opinions of the supreme court in which it was stated that a defendant might have friends in the audience to "take a disturbance for the purpose of securing a new trial."

"I have affidavits," he went on, "which show the wisdom of this opinion and skew that this was done in this case.

"Judge Roan did not express any doubt

Bryan Announces He Will Now Tell How to End War

Prepares Another Statement Which, He Promises Will, "Show the Way Out" of Trouble in Europe

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Former Secretary Bryan announced through friends here today that he will issue another statement tomorrow or Wednesday proposing a means of ending the war.

The statement will not deal with his resignation, but with "the war as it is; the causes that led to it, and the way out." It was said it would be Mr. Bryan's last statement "for the present."

Colonel Lowry Back In Atlanta and Feels Fine After Operation

Friends of Colonel Robert J. Lowry, and they are countless—bade him warm welcome on his return to Atlanta after an absence of several weeks in New York City.

In New York he was operated on for a cataract. That the operation was entirely successful and Colonel Lowry's recovery from it complete, is gratifying news to all who know him.

He reached Atlanta Sunday and Monday morning was back at his desk in the Lowry National bank, with a cheery word of greeting and a friendly handclasp for the many who stopped to congratulate him on his return.

On March 4 Colonel Lowry celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday. "Seventy-five years young!" he declared himself then, and with the same genial heartiness he told his callers Monday that he "never felt better in his life." And he looked it, too.

STREET CAR TRAFFIC TIED UP IN CHICAGO BY STRIKE

Tens of Thousands of Persons Are Forced to Walk to Work

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, June 14.—What is said to be the greatest street car strike the United States has ever known, began here at 4 o'clock this morning. Fourteen thousand persons are thrown out of employment, 1,310 miles of single elevated and surface track was rendered idle, and a burden was thrown on steam roads, automobiles, vans and other vehicles which they were able to meet only in small part.

For four hours not a car moved, then a south side elevated train carrying a few passengers made a round trip as a test. As a result it was announced an attempt would be made to run trains with strikebreakers and guards every fifteen minutes. The surface lines made no attempt to work.

Policemen and private guards were stationed over all company property, but no disorder was reported.

Business was not paralyzed, but it was benumbed. The tie-up in one way or another affected every branch of the city's activities. The steam railroads put on extra trains and extra coaches, but were swamped with business.

Lines of persons waiting to get through the turnstiles stretched for blocks and tens of thousands walked to work.

The rupture over hours of service and wages came last night when Mayor Thompson admitted that his attempts at mediation was a failure. The men posted pickets and a carload of strikebreakers was reported to have arrived secretly from Cincinnati.

BILLINGS' YACHT RAMS STEAMER; TWO KILLED

The Vanadis Crashes Into Passenger Boat in Long Island Sound

NEW YORK, June 14.—C. K. G. Billings' steam yacht Vanadis reached Glen Cove, L. I., early today with the body of John J. Brown, of Boston, one of the two victims of a collision in Long Island Sound last night between the yacht and the big white passenger steamer Bunker Hill, of the Metropolitan line. The body of the other victim, George H. Kendrick, also of Boston, was brought back to New York by the Bunker Hill when she returned to the Vanadis, three miles from the spot at which a hole in her side thirty feet high and nearly twenty feet long.

Brown and Kendrick and three others injured in the accident were passengers on the Bunker Hill bound for Boston. The Vanadis rammed the passenger steamer in a thick fog off Eaton's Neck at the eastern end of Huntington Bay. The yacht backed out of the hole in the Bunker Hill's side with her bow smashed and festooned with iron bedsteads and other furniture swept from the staterooms of the sound liner.

WILSON URGES ALL AMERICANS TO BE PATRIOTIC ALWAYS

President Tells Hearers at Flag Day Exercises to Remember Patriotism in Other Days Than Holidays

CARRY FLAG EVER IN YOUR HEARTS, HE SAYS

Old Glory Is Now Hope of All Civilization, Declares Secretary of Treasury McAdoo in Introducing Wilson

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 14.—President Wilson, speaking at Flag day exercises here today, urged Americans to remember their patriotism on other days than national holidays and to carry the flag of the country ever in their hearts.

The president made no direct reference to the European war or to international questions, but he was applauded whenever he referred to the patriotism of the American people.

The exercises were held on the south steps of the treasury building. When the president arrived a large audience stood and cheered until he waived his hands for silence.

In introducing the president, Secretary McAdoo said the meeting was to pay homage to the flag "of our country at a time when it has a deeper significance than ever before in the world's history—when it is the hope of civilization."

PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

"For me," said the president, "the flag does not express a mere body of vague sentiments. It is the embodiment, not of a sentiment, but of a history, and no man can rightly serve under that flag who has not caught some of the meaning of that history.

"You do not create the meaning of a national life by any literary exposition of it, but by the actual daily endeavors of a great people to do the things of the day and live up to the ideals of honesty and righteousness and just conduct. And as we think of these things, our tribute is to those men who have created this experience. Of these men we feel that they have shown us the way. They have not been afraid to go before. They have known that they were speaking the thoughts of a great people when they led that great people along the paths to achievement. There was not a single swash-buckler among them. They were men of sober, quiet thought, and therefore effective because there was no bluster in it. They were men who thought along the lines of duty, not along the lines of self-aggrandizement. They were men, in short, who thought of the people whom they served, and not of themselves.

"But while we think of them and do honor to them we think of those who have shown us the way, let us not forget that the real experience and life of a nation lies with the great multitude of unknown men. They constitute the body of the nation. This flag is an epitome of their daily endeavor. This flag does not express any more than what they are; and as I think of the life of this great nation it seems to me that we sometimes look to the wrong places for its resources.

PATRIOTIC ALWAYS.

"We look to the noisy platforms, where men are talking in the market place; we look to where men are expressing their individual opinions. We look back not only of every public official, but of every man and woman in the United States, those nameless ones, host which has brought us to the present day—the host that has never forgot the vision which it had at the birth of the nation: the host which always responds to the dictates of humanity and of liberty; the host that will always constitute the strength and the great body of friends of every man who does his duty in the United States.

"I am sorry that you do not wear a little flag of the union every day, instead of some days; and I can only ask you, if you have the physical privilege, to be sure that you wear it in your heart, and the heart of America shall interpret the heart of the world."

The United States marine band and a chorus composed of treasury department employes took part in the patriotic program.

Similar celebrations were held in cities throughout the United States.

Philadelphia Holds Exercises In Home of Betsy Ross

TWO DEAD; FIVE WOUNDED IN WINNSBORO, S. C., RIOT

Attempt of Officers to Save Negro From Mob Causes Desperate Battle

(By Associated Press.)

WINNSBORO, S. C., June 14.—A white man named Eisenhauer and Utes Smith, a negro, the latter charged with criminal assault, were killed and five officers were wounded, Sheriff A. D. Hood probably fatally, during a riot here early today when a mob attempted to take the negro Smith from the officers. During the fighting that followed, Smith's body was riddled with bullets.

The dead are:

EISENHAUSER, a citizen.

UTES SMITH, a negro prisoner.

The wounded are:

Sheriff A. D. Hood, shot in abdomen, may die.

Deputy Stevenson, seriously, shot several times.

Deputy Roland, shot in shoulder.

Constable Beckham, seriously.

Constable Kelley, seriously.

The negro prisoner, in charge of Sheriff Hood and his deputies, had arrived at the court house, coming from the jail, when a mob of possibly one hundred men made a concerted attempt to seize the prisoner. The sheriff and his escort had prepared for possible trouble and met the mob with a warning to halt. The warning was not obeyed and some one fired a shot at Smith. This precipitated the riot, which continued about ten minutes and, during which a continuous fusillade was maintained.

The negro prisoner was among the first to fall, his body riddled by many bullets and small shot. It was apparent that the mob directed their fire at the prisoner.

Immediately after quiet had been partially restored, medical aid was obtained for the wounded officers. A special train was chartered and was prepared to rush the wounded men to a hospital at Columbia.

Excitement was intense during the morning and reached an apparent climax with the riot.

Similar celebrations were held in cities throughout the United States.

WHITNEY, GOLF CHAMP, HERE FOR DIXIE MEET

Qualifying Round for Southern Championship Tournament Will Begin Tuesday

The premier golfing talent of Dixie is busy with its favorite sport over the East Lake links today. With the qualifying round for the fourteenth annual of the Annual Southern Championship tournament scheduled for Tuesday, these exponents of the game are putting on the finishing touches for their preliminary work today. All the morning the splendid East Lake course was thickly dotted with groups composing twosomes, threesomes and foursomes, and even larger numbers were expected to engage during the afternoon.

Indications are that today's rounds will produce some scores that will give a line on the winner of the low medal score cup to be awarded to the player turning in the best card Tuesday.

Nelson Whitney, present title holder, from New Orleans; W. P. Stewart, twice winner of the title in past tournaments, from New Orleans; Leigh Carroll, another former winner also from the Crescent City, and J. P. Edrington, from Memphis, who held the title for one year, are out to distance the field if possible. In addition to these, there are Dexter and Aldrege, of Dallas; Jack Sloan, of Macon; J. A. Evans, Jr., of Memphis; Bryan Heard, of Houston; R. H. Baugh, of Birmingham, and many others, who entertain hopes of making the fight through to the finish for the cup.

It had remained for a local golfer, Archie Davison, to land the low card up until this morning. Davison turned in a fine 75, having 41 through fifteen holes. His best achievement in this round was his play on No. 15. This is a 450-yard hole, and is up hill almost all the way. Davison was more than flag high on his second, having landed on the green beyond the pin. After two magnificent wood shots, a drive and a brassie. He was putting back to the cup for a three.

The Athletic club has extended an invitation to the members of the Capital City, Piedmont Driving, and Druid Hills clubs to visit the country club during this tournament, the invitation including today's play, and it was anticipated that a large crowd would be on hand to watch the practice rounds this afternoon. There will be a half dozen and more foursomes composed of players, who are likely to figure in the running right on through the tournament, and this afternoon's play may produce some of the best golf of the week.

Several score of golfers have already reached the city, some arriving as early as Saturday. Others are still to come. Those who are registered at the hotels are:

ATTACK ON MEXICO CITY IS THREATENED

Villa Forces Notified to Join Carranza Army, Get Out or Fight

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Attention of Washington officials was focussed again today on the military situation in Mexico, where there was a possibility of important developments which might bring ultimate peace in the southern republic. Chief interest centers in the outcome of the prospective battle between Carranza troops and Villa forces for the possession of Mexico City, now in the hands of Villa's men.

Advices received here from Carranza sources at Vera Cruz said that General Pablo Gonzales, a Carranza commander, who is now moving toward Mexico City, had been approached by members of the convention party from the Mexican capital, with an offer of an armistice. His answer is said to have been that the forces in Mexico City had better join the Carranza forces or evacuate the city without shedding blood. According to the same information, Gonzales gave the delegates forty-eight hours to return and present his proposition to the convention.

Developments in the military situation at Mexico City are awaited with considerable interest here because of the likelihood of their influence on the political side of Mexico's problem.

General Carranza has already put in a bid for recognition basing it on a claim that he controls a large territory and has instituted civil administration there. Although making no request for recognition, General Villa has replied favorably to President Wilson's recent suggestion that the factions in Mexico unite for peace.

Report of Carothers Is Anxiously Awaited

(By Associated Press.)

EL PASO, Tex., June 14.—American and Mexican officials here and in Juarez today awaited expectantly the arrival of George C. Carothers, special representative of the United States in Villa territory and Miguel Diaz Lombardo, foreign minister in Villa's cabinet. Advices last night stated that they had left Aguas Calientes and should reach the border today. It was expected they would bring authentic information relative to the military situation along the Villa-Obregon front between Leon and Celaya.

Maytorena Replies to U. S. Warning Not to Fire on Town

DOUGLAS, Ariz., June 14.—Governor Jose Maytorena Villa, commander of Sonora, in an announcement made public today, gives the full text of his reply to the warning of Colonel C. M. O'Connor, commanding the United States border patrol, issued several days ago to the Villa commanders not to attack Agua Prieta because of the danger to American lives and property on this side of the border.

Maytorena states that he has urged Generals Urbalejo, Acosta and Trujillo to use scrupulous care not to violate the Naco agreement and expose this city to the slightest danger from firing.

German Official Statement Conflicts With Press Dispatch From Petrograd Saying Kaiser Lost 20,000 Men

DESPERATE FIGHTING IN FRANCE NOT YET DECIDED

Both French and Germans Claim Some Success--British Steamer Hopemount Is Sunk by a German Submarine

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 14.—In northern Galicia, between Przemysl and Lemberg, there has been a renewal of furious fighting and Berlin claims the Teutonic allies have gained an important victory. An attack along a forty-five-mile front is said to have resulted in capture of the Russian positions between Cherniaw, northwest of Mosciska, and Sienawa, northward of the San. The announcement says 16,000 prisoners were taken yesterday.

A press dispatch from Petrograd gives another version, saying 20,000 men of the Austro-German attacking forces were killed, the remainder being routed.

In northern France heavy fighting continues. The German war office today announced that the French had sustained a severe defeat near Arras. The French military authorities asserted a German work had been captured near Lorette, but admitted the Germans had recaptured part of the entrenchments at Souchez won the previous day.

The British steamer Hopemount of 2,400 tons was sunk off Lands End by a German submarine. The crew was rescued.

Heavy fighting has been resumed on the Gallipoli peninsula. The Turkish war office announces that attacks of the French and British forces against the Turkish right wing were repulsed, and that the allies were thrown back to their original positions with heavy losses.

A press dispatch from Petrograd says 40,000 men in the army of General Mackenzen were killed as the result of an attack on the Russian positions near Mosciska, Galicia. The Austro-German attempt to capture Lemberg is said to have been given up. Official dispatches, however, indicate no marked change in Galicia, where fighting is continuous and severe.

Occupation of the Carinthian town of Valentina by the Italians is announced officially at Rome. Along the Isonzo river a number of local operations has been in progress several days. Although the Italians apparently have won some advantages, the Austrians have brought up reinforcements and are offering determined resistance.

Re-capture of the British steamer Arndale has been sunk in the White sea by a mine.

A German submarine set fire to a Danish schooner after placing her crew on another Danish sailing vessel, which was permitted to proceed.

Germans Cross Dniester; Great Battles Raging

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, June 14.—Although the French appear to be unyielding in their offensive, which is netting slow progress in northeastern France, the situation in the eastern arena of the war where the Austro-German forces are straining every nerve to deliver a crushing blow to the Russians, remains of the utmost importance. No confirmation has been received of the report that the Teutons have reoccupied Zurawna, but further south they are across the Dniester and on Russian soil in Bessarabia.

Not for months has there been such general activity on the eastern front. Checked 3,500-ton steamer on the Galician line, the Austro-German armies have developed an offensive on both wings of the army, and they are striving for another battle in Poland, north of Przasnysz. There is confused fighting in the Baltic provinces, so it may be said the contenders once more are at grips from the Baltic to the Rumanian frontier.

The stand the Russians have been making recently in Galicia indicates to British observers that their shortage of ammunition has been overcome. It was this shortage, according to the belief here, that enabled the Teutons last month to sweep across the country and take Przemysl in such record time.

In Greece the followers of former Premier Venizelos, who resigned because Greece would not enter the war on the side of the allies, seem to have the upper hand, judging from the early returns of the general elections held in the districts of Venizelos and the policies of M. Venzielos may have a bearing on Greece's future course.

Enemy Repulsed With Heavy Losses, Claims Constantinople

CONSTANTINOPLE, via Amsterdam and London, June 14.—The Turkish war office has given out the following statement:

"During the night of June 11-12 the enemy repeatedly attempted to attack our right wing but was repulsed with heavy losses to his original positions. Yesterday our Anatolian coast batteries successfully bombarded the enemy's positions."

British Steamer Hits Mine and Sinks Off Russian Coast

LONDON, June 14.—The British steamship Arndale of 2,583 tons gross has been sunk as the result of striking a mine in the White sea.

Wounded in Winnsboro Riot Taken to Columbia

COLUMBIA, S. C., June 14.—A special train bearing the man wounded in the rioting early today at Winnsboro arrived here at 5 o'clock and the wounded were rushed to a hospital. It was said there that Sheriff Hood would undergo an operation immediately in a final effort to save his life.

FRANK HEARING ON BEFORE GOVERNOR SLATON

as to the fairness of Frank's trial. On the contrary when the sentenced Frank Judge Roan declared that the trial was fair. The six justices of the supreme court of Georgia were united in saying he had a fair trial. The division was occasioned only by the question as to the admissability of Conley's evidence.

"Despite this action by the supreme court each succeeding motion by counsel for Frank has brought forward this charge, as have also the false and slanderous statements appearing in newspapers from coast to coast. It has even been printed that men in the crowd shouted to jurors, 'Hang Frank or we'll hang you.' The records show that during the trial there were no cryings out against Frank whatever. Will the statements o outsiders be set up above the action of the trial judge? What is the opinion of the trial judge and the opinion of the supreme court be disregarded in favor of these false newspaper reports? If so, then to use a mild expression, it will be a sad day for the administration of law in Georgia.

"In the court records Frank has sought to create doubts by the same methods and false statements used by those in charge of his publicity propaganda.

"Frank in making his motion to the United States district court on the ground of being absent when the verdict was rendered again brought in his allegation of disorder in the court room. But Judge Newman with proper respect for the state courts disregarded this plea and the supreme court of the United States upheld him, saying: 'The petition contains a narrative of disorder and hostile demonstrations, but it appears that these allegations were submitted to the trial court and to the supreme court of Georgia, and considered at different times by those courts entirely free from mob domination, and both found the allegations to be groundless.'

NEW AFFIDAVITS.

"But in view of the fact that you have received letters from prominent men outside of the state, I have brought here affidavits from officers, jurors and citizens, showing that there was no disorder or demonstration during the trial, that there was no occasion for the solicitude of the public press; and that at no time was there any reasons for calling out the militia."

At this point Solicitor Dorsey gave way for the governor to hear from Dr. Wilmer, who asked for a commutation of sentence. He read a petition to this effect signed by a number of the leading ministers of Atlanta, this being the same petition that was read to the prison commission by Dr. John E. White, pastor of Second Baptist church.

The petition strongly appealed for commutation on the following grounds: That a commutation would not change the jury's verdict, nor would it reflect upon the work of the solicitor or the judge; that the evidence is that a life sentence would vindicate the severity of the law; that there are reasons facts about the crime which are not now in evidence; that to commute would be an act both of justice and humanity.

After reading the petition Dr. Wilmer announced that owing to the different views of the various ministers signing it he only seemed it to ask that consideration to include appeals additional to those stated.

"However, speaking for myself," said Dr. Wilmer, "and for the ministers in Atlanta, I wish at the outset to repudiate any impression that there is anything here to indicate an appeal for mercy. Mr. McWorter has made such a confession of guilt. The appeal which I make is based on moral grounds and on a matter of justice.

PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

"The atmosphere, your excellency, ought to be cleared for a consideration of this case on its merits. I was surprised to read a few days ago when a certain public meeting was held that the sentiments of people outside of Georgia should not be considered, but that only the sentiments of the people of this state should be considered. That, sir, is a declaration that the case should not be decided on its merits, I contend that you should give to the sentiment in Georgia and the sentiment outside of Georgia just that weight to which it is entitled and no more.

"Several matters have been injected into this case which tend to befog it, and it is with reluctance that I discuss them in public. A prejudice has been engendered between Jews and Gentiles. Even if it were true, as charged by some, that the friends of Frank have done anything of a wrongful character in his behalf, it would not be something for you to consider in an appeal for commutation. There would be no reason why Frank should be hanged simply because of some misguided or misdirected efforts on the part of his friends.

"There is another point to which I wish to call your attention, and I don't know whether I should say it in public. That is, class prejudice has been brought into this case—a prejudice between employes and employer. This was obviously before the trial during the trial, and has been perfectly obvious since the trial.

"Then, your excellency, politics has been injected into this case, and it also should be eliminated from consideration.

"I referred a few moments ago to the sentiment inside and outside the state. Unconsciously, perhaps, those who appeal for and those who appeal against, agree that there is something in this case which draws public sentiment into play."

JUMP AT CONCLUSIONS.

Here Dr. Wilmer related an incident to illustrate the fact that there is a ways a certain class of people who jump at conclusions. He said in the Tennessee valley a young girl was murdered. The authorities arrested a man on suspicion, and it was with difficulty that the conservative element of the city managed to restrain and prevent the people from lynching him, although there was not a direct evidence of his guilt.

"There is a class of people," Dr. Wilmer continued, "who mean well, no doubt, but they jump at conclusions in cases like this. It takes a trained mind to hold its judgment in suspense in the absence of evidence.

"A verdict should be the kind of a verdict that satisfies the intelligent, thinking class of citizens. In elections, votes should be counted. In this case, votes should be weighed. Those who feel a reasonable doubt in this case are, in the main, the supporters of religion and character in the community.

"I want to say to you that nothing in my fifteen years of residence in this, my adopted state, has so amazed me as the contention by many that we ought to hush now and that the doors ought to be closed on this case because the courts have passed on it. These fail to take into consideration the full machinery provided by law. The majority report of the prison commission on this case did not take into consideration the full process of the law, and the ex-governor who appeared before you on Saturday held, like the majority of the commission, and like many others, that when the jury and supreme court pass on a case it is time to settle it. Let those who say the law must be sustained open their minds and take into consideration the complete legal machinery provided. This machinery includes an appeal to the executive and bestows upon him the power and authority to decide such an appeal in such a way as his judgment and conscience dictate.

"I wish briefly to refer to the atmosphere of this community before and during Frank's trial. I do not propose to reply to what I have just heard Solicitor Dorsey say on this subject, but I am going to suggest something for him to reply to. Even should we admit that there was no suggestion of violence whatever on the part of the spectators at the trial, it should be remembered that the psychological influence is far more subtle and far more calculated to affect the mind of a brave man than mob violence.

EVIDENCE PREPARED TO FIT.

"I wish to call your excellency's attention to the way in which the evidence for the prosecution was worked up by the detectives. I appeal to your knowledge of how the testimony of the principal witness on which Frank was convicted was prepared day after day and week after week to make it 'fit' the theory of the state. I cannot give my consent to hang a man on such testimony. The self-interest of this witness should also be taken into consideration. I don't believe the evidence in this case was ever carefully analyzed before the jury.

"If there is any doubt in your mind as to what you should do, then there is no doubt as to what you should do. Unless the governor of this state can say in his own mind that this man is absolutely guilty beyond a reasonable doubt, it is his right and his solemn duty to give him the benefit of the doubt.

"No matter what may be said about the working up of sentiment in the case, when the prejudice and passion have faded away and the facts historian, summing up, and writing of him who made the final decision, would, if the governor refused to commute, have to write that he did so in the face of the best legal and judicial opinion of his own state."

DORSEY REPLIES.

"It is not my purpose," said he, "to alter the course of my discussion in order to reply to Dr. Wilmer. Most of what he has said has been heard from other sources over the country. He and Mr. Osborn, the handwriting expert, may stress such indefinite propositions as hypnotic and psychological influences, but I will say that it was in the atmosphere that this man Frank was guilty and it was also in the atmosphere that there was no chance to convict him. A judge on the bench who was my friend advised me not to press the case. The newspapers for ten days made fun of the evidence in course of preparation. Only after the medical and other direct evidence showed that the girl met her death in thirty minutes after she left home did public sentiment get the idea that Frank was guilty. I am not going to take up your time to reply to that portion of Dr. Wilmer's statement to the effect that the intelligent, religious people believe in Frank's innocence and the unintelligent, irreligious people believe in his guilt. The detectives who worked up the evidence for the state are as good men as can be and as good as any other men of the cloth in Atlanta. I want to state right here and now that the state has absolute conclusive evidence of Frank's guilt without and independent of the testimony of Jim Conley."

The solicitor here returned to his written brief, reading therefrom, and stated that he had affidavits from the sheriff and sheriff's deputies, Police Chief Beavers, Colonel Pomeroy, of the fifth regiment, newspaper reporters and other citizens in refutation of the charges of a hostile atmosphere and violent demonstration during the trial.

TOM-TIT AND TURKEY.

He remarked that these charges could be heaped in the "tom-tit" the original motion for a new trial and to a turkey gobbler when Frank's lawyers attacked the United States supreme court.

Passing to the second division of his argument—namely, the doubt as to Frank's guilt—Solicitor Dorsey said:

"It is admitted that Mary Phagan was murdered in the pencil factory. Frank's early inuendos led the detectives to suspect Gantt, later to suspect Newt Lee.

"The state put in evidence ten witnesses, mostly girls, who testified that Frank's character previous to the crime was bad. They testified that his character for lasciviousness, which furnished the motive for the crime, was bad. Frank's counsel could have cross-examined these witnesses. The state could not. Frank only could have brought out specific instances and could have made an effort to disprove them. If these witnesses had been prejudiced because he was a Jew or because he was an employer, or any of that stuff that Dr. Wilmer talks about, if they were unworthy of belief, that could have been demonstrated to the jury. Why was it that Frank did not avail himself of this privilege? Why was it that he was held from the jury what only he could bring out? It is true that these witnesses were only poor working girls, but will Frank now insist that they are perjurers because he and his counsel dared not cross-examine them? The records, however, do show acts on his part previous to the day of the murder, which show bad character.

"Among other things it was shown that he was in the habit of visiting the dressing rooms when the girls were not fully clothed and leering in at them. His explanation of this was the lame statement that he was trying to break up flirting from the windows, something he could have done through the fore-lady. It was shown that he was given to meeting one of the fore-ladies in a secluded room, and remaining there with her fifteen minutes or longer. At the trial the state was ready to show many specific instances, and did show them in a few cases, where his statement bened the way. Leaving out Conley's testimony, we showed that Frank was a man of bad character. Did Frank know Daisy Hopkins? Eliminating Conley, Dalton swore that he saw women in Frank's office and that Daisy introduced him to Frank in that office. The state produced witnesses who testified that they saw Frank in the office with Daisy accompanied by a woman. Daisy swore on the stand that she did not know Frank. The state proved that she was a woman of bad character and that she had worked at the factory. The state introduced a witness who saw Daisy going into the factory one Saturday afternoon and who saw her again on the same day, April 26, and if the state had known it would have, by that witness, cleared up one of the points that has been in controversy.

CHARACTER EVIDENCE.

"Frank's character was a disputed point. The jury was instructed how to weigh the evidence and to test the credibility of these character witnesses. They found by their verdict that these witnesses told the truth and that his character was bad. They heard the witnesses testify, studied their demeanor upon the stand, and were they not better able to judge than these gentlemen from a distance who write so many letters?

"This case was won before the jury. They had an opportunity of hearing these witnesses, of hearing all of the witnesses in this case, where more perjury has been committed than in any other case ever tried in this state.

"Mary Phagan was a well developed and extremely pretty girl. Despite Frank's statement, the state showed that he did know her, and that he had been intruding his attentions upon her. In contradiction of his statement, the state proved that he knew her and was enamoured of her. Gantt, the man who was attacked by Frank, and the man who was locked up at Frank's instance, at a time when there were more suspicious circumstances against Frank than there were against Gantt, testified that he saw Frank talking to Mary and remarked to him at the time, 'You seem to know Mary pretty well.' Frank was seen talking to her and insisting upon talking to her when she was backing away from him.

"Saturday was a holiday, and notices had been posted, after Mary left the factory on Friday, to the effect that the employes would be paid on Friday. The state contends that Frank in making up the payroll knew that Mary would come, not on Friday, but on Saturday at noon. Frank was asked by Helen Ferguson to let her have Mary's pay, but contrary to the custom of the factory he refused, and he refused because he wanted Mary to come there on Saturday. That is a conclusive inference if Conley is to be believed. The detectives could not have put that into Conley's head, even they are not so stupid as some people would have you believe.

"On the extraordinary motion before Judge Hill, we were able to show by the wife of a substantial citizen that she saw Conley and Frank on the street at the exact place where Conley says they met. By another good woman, Mrs. Waites, we showed that she saw Conley and Frank talking together in front of Sig Montag's office. Tillander and Graham both testified that they saw a negro, not drunk, as the defense contends Conley was, sitting in the factory but where Conley says he was stationed by Frank.

"Still further, Mrs. J. A. White testified that she saw a negro there. We are authorized by the defense to assume that it was Conley, as the defense finally placed Conley there and claimed that there he killed Mary Phagan.

TIME EVIDENCE.

"Frank says he did not see Conley. Mrs. White says he did. Tillander and Graham say Conley was there. Mrs. White says she saw a negro there about 12:30, the time Mr. Howard says they concede Mary met her death. Let them explain why Conley did not assault Mrs. White.

"Conley was undoubtedly there at 11:40 and still at 11:50. Conley knew that Tillander and Graham saw him. He knew that other people had seen him there on previous Saturdays. Yet the defense would have you believe that he murdered the girl. Yet he showed up for work Monday morning and was around with the detectives and newspaper men, and did not stay at home like Frank did. Frank at that time had engaged at least two lawyers.

"On Friday Mell Stanford, an unimpeached witness, swept up the metal room, where eleven people say they saw blood on Monday, and on that Friday he saw no blood."

Dramatically raising his hand, the solicitor here exclaimed in a very much louder voice:

"I went there and I saw that blood, and there is no doubt that it was blood.

"Barrett and Mrs. Emerson say there was no blood there on Friday, yet they saw it on Monday. Barrett says there was no hair on his machine Friday evening, and the first thing Monday morning he found strands of hair on the machine, which, according to the defense's own witness, was the same color and texture as Mary Phagan's hair. This in conjunction with the wound on her head and with the blood spots show that Mary met her death on the second floor. Still further, blood was found on the route to the elevator.

"Personally, I took five men a week after the murder, and lighting up every nook and cranny in that factory we made a search and we did not find any suggestion of blood or bloody sticks on the first floor. McWorter and some other Pinkerton men claimed to have found, on May 15, blood where the defense claims Conley was sitting. The finding of blood on the second floor was reported by Frank's own employes. The evidence showed that there was blood on Frank's floor, and that there was no blood on Conley's floor."

CONTRADICTORY STATEMENTS.

At this point Solicitor Dorsey pointed out at length what he termed contradictory statements made by Frank.

"In one sworn statement," said he, Frank said the girl came in at 12:05 or 12:10 or maybe 12:07. In another statement he said she was between 12 and 12:30. One statement was made before Monteen Stover came into the case and disclosed that Frank was not in his office when she went there. The idea that Frank, the statistician, was out of his office during that half hour and did not remember going out is absurd. He only undertook to dodge when he realized that Providence had little Monteen Stover into the office at the very time when he must account most minutely for his movements.

The governor here asked Mr. Dorsey whether Frank knew about Monteen Stover at the time he testified before the coroner's jury.

"He did not say," said the solicitor. "That was before he knew that the state could scientifically determine the time of Mary Phagan's death. Before the coroner Frank said he left the factory at 1:10. In his statement before the trial jury he claimed to have looked at his watch when he was leaving and the time was 12:50. By this he would get away from Conley and away from Albert McKnight, and arrange so that the perjury of little Helen Kearn might come to his rescue. At the coroner's inquest he said he caught a Washington street car at the corner of Alabama and Broad streets. At the trial he said he caught a Georgia avenue car at the corner of Whitehall and Alabama streets.

"The jury, your excellency, had an opportunity of hearing Lois Kearn child testify. She is the daughter of a man who was the employe of an official of the factory. The jury must have held that her testimony was not worthy of full credence, but was simply another of these manufactured circumstances to support the minute alibi which the defendant attempted to palm off. If the ignorant Conley lied, Frank, the university graduate, has made many most glaring misstatements and has frequently contradicted himself. Eliminating Conley, there are many circumstances which are inconsistent with any hypothesis save that of guilt.

"First, Frank claims to have canceled an engagement to attend a baseball game. There is the testimony of Mrs. McKnight of his demeanor that day when he went home to lunch, and, while the defense made an effort to discredit this testimony, they did not make a dent in it.

FINANCIAL SHEET.

"Frank contends that he did not make out the financial statement Saturday morning. Miss Fleming testified that she saw him making it out. In answer to questions, she declared that it was always Frank's custom to make out the financial sheet before 12 or 1 o'clock.

"At this point in the trial Attorney Arnold, for the defense, interposed and asked Miss Fleming if it was not true that Frank did not make out the sheet Saturday morning on the day in question. She answered that he did not on this particular occasion. That, your excellency, was a sample of the perjury in this trial, right under the very eyes of the jury.

"It was the contention of the state that Frank did not make out the sheet on Saturday afternoon, as he claimed, but that he began on it Friday afternoon and finished it Saturday morning, it being his intention to attend a baseball game Saturday afternoon. Now, the state contends that there was no reason for him to return to the factory Saturday afternoon except to dispose of Mary Phagan's body.

"At the coroner's inquest Frank said, and I quote his exact language: 'I thought I was going to the ball game, but the weather was so raw and threatening that I decided not to go.' At the trial Frank testified that he telephoned Mr. Ursenbach's code to tell Mr. Ursenbach that 'on account of some work at the factory' he would be unable to go with him.' Previously Frank had not stated with whom he had the ball game engagement. It appeared from Dalton's testimony that he had the engagement with Ursenbach.

"The state has consistently insisted that Frank went back to the factory that Saturday afternoon to dispose of the body. On Friday afternoon Frank had arranged with Newt Lee, the negro night watchman, to come to work at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, which was an hour earlier than usual. When Lee came, unusual things had happened. The double inside door was locked. When Lee went up at 4 o'clock, Frank, contrary to his general custom, which was to sit at his desk and give directions to Newt while the latter was at the clock outside, met Newt at the clock and instructed him to leave and stay away for two hours, that is until 6 o'clock, which was an hour later than usual and two hours later than he had originally directed. Newt Lee testified that he asked permission of Frank to go down in the shipping room and take a nap, but that Frank insisted on his 'going out and having a good time,' as Frank expressed it. Newt testified that when he came Frank manifested great nervousness while changing the clock by the time clock, and that when Frank met Gantt at the door he hung his head and appeared to be frightened. This fact was corroborated by Lee and Gantt, two men to whom Frank sought to direct the finger of suspicion. When Gantt told Frank he wanted to go upstairs and get a pair of shoes he had left there, Frank stated that he had seen these shoes and swept out with the broom. Whereupon Gantt said he had left also a pair of tan shoes upstairs.

"Then Frank managed to allow Gantt to go into the factory, and lo and behold Gantt found both pairs of shoes, the blue shoes and the tan shoes, that never produced any sweeper who testified that he had swept out any shoes. That story carries on its face the indication it was false.

AT THE INQUEST.

"At the coroner's inquest Frank said he told Gantt that he had given a pair of shoes to some negro.

"In attempting to explain why he telephoned Newt Lee Saturday night, Frank claimed he wanted to find out if Gantt had left the factory. If you could have seen Frank and contrasted his attitude with the physical facts in the case, you could not have escaped the conclusion that he was guilty.

"Newt Lee testified that that was the

WEST END PHARMACY ROBBED SUNDAY NIGHT

Thief Enters by Skylight and Gets $250 Cash and $150 in Checks

By swinging through a skilight on a strand of telephone wire, a second "Jimmy Valentine" entered the West End pharmacy, at Gordon and Lee streets, Sunday night, opened the office safe by working the combination, and got away out of the back door was $400.

The robbery was discovered by Dr. L. B. Brewer, who opened the store at 6:30 o'clock Monday morning. Dr. Brewer saw the wire hanging down into the store from the skylight, out of which two panes of glass had been broken; further investigation showed that the safe had been robbed of $250 in cash and $150 in checks.

The robber climbed up the back of the pharmacy building, a one-story structure, cut off a long strand, broke the skylight and entered. When he finished the job he unlocked the back door and went away.

Dr. P. L. Provano, owner and proprietor of the pharmacy, said Dr. Brewer telephoned the city detective department at 6:30, immediately upon discovering the robbery, but that no detectives appeared until 8:45 o'clock.

COLONEL ROOSEVELT PASSES THROUGH CITY

Local Members of Progressive Party Greet Noted Visitor at Terminal

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and Mrs. Roosevelt passed through Atlanta Sunday afternoon on their way home from a visit with John M. Parker, national Progressive committeeman, in Louisiana.

The colonel was met at the Terminal station by a delegation of local Progressives, headed by C. W. McClure. During his twenty-minute stop here the colonel conversed with friends regarding the chances of the Progressives in the next national elections.

TWO LITTLE GIRLS TELL STORY OF BEING DRUGGED

After being carried to the Grady hospital in an apparently drugged condition late Sunday night, Maggie Nix, seven years old, and May Blackwell, eleven years old, 60-A Wyman street, in the Fulton Bag and Cotton mill district, were reported to be doing well at the hospital Monday morning.

The little girls, according to the police, came into their home late Sunday night and told a tale of smelling something on a handkerchief held under their noses by two young men, who met them in a drug store near their homes. They say they didn't remember anything more until about 10 o'clock Sunday night, when they awoke in a house, out of which an old woman drove them, fussing at them.

PONCE DE LEON PAVING MEETING MONDAY NIGHT

Poperty Owners to Meet at McElreath's Home to Sign Petition

Ponce de Leon avenue property owners will meet Monday evening at 8 o'clock at the residence of Walter McElreath, 578 Ponce de Leon, to decide what kind of paving is wanted on that street and to sign a petition after the class of paving is agreed upon.

Every property owner is urged to be present at the meeting for a delay will be unavoidable and there can be no relief from the present deplorable condition of the street until a majority of the property owners have signed a petition.

A petition was signed by a majority of the property holders, but through a clerical error it was rendered valueless.

At the meeting Monday evening will be Alderman Edgar Dunlap, representative of the Ninth ward; Chief of Construction Nym Hurt, and other city and county officials. Mr. Hurt will have estimates showing the exact cost of the various classes of pavement, and it is hoped that at the meeting a majority of the property holders will sign the petition.

If this is done the paving ordinance can be rushed through the next session of city council, and every effort made to expedite the work on Ponce de Leon avenue, which is now declared to be almost impassable.

TWO PERSONS ARE INJURED WHEN AUTO IS DITCHED

George Braungart and Party Have Close Call Sunday Afternoon

Two persons were painfully injured Sunday afternoon and three others had narrow escapes when the automobile of George Braungart, of 45 Currier street, was ditched on the Marietta road near the Southern bridge, four miles from Atlanta.

Mr. Braungart, who was driving the car, and Miss Leonora Rheams, of New Orleans, with him on the front seat, were cut and bruised. In the tonneau were Mrs. P. J. Everett, of 101 Hurt street, whom Miss Rheams is visiting, Mr. Everett and Mrs. A. U. Butler, of New Orleans. They were not hurt.

The scene of the accident was a sharp curve in the road. The machine skidded as it rounded the curve coming in toward Atlanta, jolted down a small embankment and brought up against a telephone post. It was damaged somewhat. Had the car been going at greater speed the consequences might have been more serious. As it was Miss Rheams and Mr. Braungart, who were taken to Grady hospital in a passing car, had their injuries dressed and left there later in the day but little the worse for their experience.

SEVERAL CHANGES IN SALARIES OF TEACHERS

Superintendent's Salary Increased--Teachers Subject to Vacation Season Work

A resolution providing important changes in the salaries of school officials and placing teachers on a salary basis fixed by the merit system, will be introduced Monday afternoon at a meeting of the board of education.

The resolution will be offered as a substitute to all previous resolutions on this matter. It does not affect the mechanical engineering and repair departments, but sets out that they shall continue as they are for the next thirty days, when reorganization will be taken up by the board. Nor does it fix the pay of high school teachers, but provides that this shall be done within the next thirty days.

The most important salary changes are an increase of the pay of superintendent of schools from $3,600 to $4,000 a year and of the primary superintendent from $1,800 to $2,000 a year. The superintendent is ordered to discharge the duties of secretary to the board and the primary superintendent is placed in charge of the vacation schools. Another important change is a cut in the salary of hygiene director from $1,800 to $1,200 a year and the provision that he give all his time to the work.

The resolution provides that teachers shall be subject to the call of the board of education eleven months in the year. It fixes their salaries in vacation schools at $10 a week, not to exceed $60 in all. The teachers are divided into six groups, their classification determined on a joint basis of scholarship, preparation, experience and efficiency, with a minimum pay for the first group of $600 a year and a maximum pay for the sixth group of $900 a year.

Two changes are proposed in the pay of principals, those of two and three-grade schools to receive $960 a year instead of $900, and those of four and five-grade schools to receive $1,020 instead of $960.

THE RESOLUTION IN FULL.

The resolution in full is as follows:

Resolved by the board of education that the pay of the officers and employes in the department of education of the city of Atlanta, beginning with September 1, 1915, and running until September 1, 1916, be and the same is hereby fixed as follows:

ADMINISTRATIVE.

Superintendent, per year	$4,000
Assistant superintendent	3,000
Clerk	1,500
Clerk	900
Clerk	900

DIRECTORS.

Primary superintendent, per year	$2,000

Assistant medical inspector	850
Assistant medical inspector	850
Assistant medical inspector	850
Assistant medical inspector	850
Assistant medical inspector	450
Assistant medical inspector (colored)	300
Writing	300

Resolved, further, that the superintendent of the schools shall also discharge the duties of secretary of the board of education.

Resolved, further, that the mechanical engineering and repair departments are hereby continued as they are for the period of thirty days, during which time the board shall work out such reorganization as in its judgment is just and proper.

Resolved, further, that the pay of teachers in the high schools and night schools shall be fixed within the next thirty days, and all parties elected to positions as teachers in such schools shall accept same subject to such arrangement.

Resolved further, that beginning with the first day of September, 1915, for the years 1915-1916, and thereafter until this resolution is rescinded, the following scale of salaries for principals, assistant principals and grade teachers in the white grammar schools shall prevail:

PRINCIPALS.

One group (6th)	900

The classification of the grade teachers and division into groups shall be done on the joint basis of scholarship, preparation, experience and efficiency, but the maximum pay of $900 shall only be paid after first term to teachers who show particular excellence.

Resolved further, that all elections of teachers shall be on the basis here indicated, and the right of assignment and reassignment of principals and assistant principals to particular schools is reserved until such time as may be determined upon by the board of education.

Resolved further, that the amount of salary which will be paid each grade teacher shall be fixed at such time as the board in its discretion may determine, provided however, that same shall be done at least thirty days before the opening of schools in September.

Resolved further, that the salaries herein provided and set out in this schedule, shall be due and payable monthly on the first of each month, beginning with October, 1915, and ending with September, 1916.

Resolved, further that each teacher shall be entitled to one month's vacation in each year, same to be at such time as may be agreed upon; but with the right reserved in the board of education to determine in all cases of disagreement. At the other times such teachers shall be subject to the direction of the board of education, and shall perform such services as may be directed.

Provided that any teacher who may be assigned and required to teach in the vacation schools shall be compensated at the rate of $10 per week for such time as she puts in, provided however, that such compensation shall in no event exceed the sum of $60 for her services as teacher in such vacation school during any one year.

Resolved, further that the pay of teachers in the negro grammar schools shall be as follows:

PRINCIPALS.

Two, three, four and five grade schools	$660
Six and seven	750
Eight, nine and ten	840
Eleven grades and above	900

Nine grades and above	720

GRADE TEACHERS.

One group (1st)	$420
One group (2nd)	480
One group (3rd)	540
One group (4th)	600

Resolved, further that the classification of the grade teachers and division into groups shall be done on the joint basis of scholarship, preparation, experience and efficiency, but the maximum pay of $600 shall only be paid after first term to teachers who show particular excellence.

Resolved, further that in all cases where the grade teachers are required to teach double grades, that twenty per cent shall be added to the amounts of salaries fixed in this resolution.

Resolved, further that said sums of money shall be payable in twelve monthly payments.

TODAY'S EVENING STORY

Mrs. Bowman's Objection

(Copyright, 1915, by W. Werner.)

STANDING in the center of the kitchen, Mrs. James A. Bowman, arms akimbo, sternly surveyed her six-foot son. "James A., Jr.," she said in the tone of one fully realizing her own supremacy, "there ain't another thing to say about it. I don't approve of Peggy Jenner! I ain't ever goin' to. I won't have her for my daughter-in-law! Now, be off with you and don't bother me any more with your nonsense." With the loftily judicial air with which she was wont to deal with disputed subjects in the Bowman establishment Mrs. Bowman resumed her preparations for the midday meal.

James A., Jr., always the most docile of sons, probably because he fully realized the futility of combating his mother's iron rule, squared his well-set shoulders against the jamb of the door, a sudden whiteness showing beneath the tan of his good-looking face. "Mother," he insisted, "you don't seem to realize that I've said I'm going to marry Peggy Jenner in the fall! Now, if you don't approve—then, why, all right. It ain't goin' to make a speck of difference!"

At the note of revolt Mrs. Bowman suddenly sat down upon the nearest chair.

James A. Jr.'s deep-set eyes smouldered. "Peggy's a dear, brave girl. Everybody thinks so but you, and you don't want to think so or say so. You've just plain prejudiced!" James A., Jr., brought out the accusation with an emphatic snap of thumb and finger.

Mrs. Bowman's eyes widened in utter disbelief. She looked about her spotless kitchen for evidences of a startling metamorphosis. For a moment she stared at James A., Jr. Her really pretty color deepened until it was a distressing scarlet. "Prejudiced! Me prejudiced" she gasped. "James A. Bowman, Jr., don't you dare accuse your mother of that there thing! I 'mnot the only body as thinks Peggy Jenner has no right to be livin' alone on her Uncle Rufus' place. Why couldn't she sell it and stick to her typewritin' job in the city? Tain't right to live her way."

Jas. A., Jr.'s, honest and faithful eyes glittered in defense of the girl he loved. "That's just what took me at first," he announced. "Her spunk in goin' to it, to make a livin' on old Rufus Jenner's place. Ain't she got a right to tire of bangin' a typewriter after bein' at it since she was 'bout eighteen?"

Mrs. Bowman's features radiated triumph. "That's just it," she boomed. "That's just it. She don't know a blessed thing else."

The best housekeeper in the county paused challengingly. Before James A., Jr.'s, reply came she continued: "A nice wife she'd make a young farmer, not knowin' a thing 'bout churnin' and bakin', picklin', and preservin' and housekeepin' gen'rl'ly!

Jimmy," cajolingly, "be heedful to your ma, and—"

As the Summer Waned James A., Jr.'s, Attention Did Not

But James A., Jr., going swiftly out the door, exploded: "Oh, of course! Well the deuce take the housekeepin'!"

And that was the last time he referred to Peggy Jenner, in spite of prodigiously prophetic remarks dropped upon every available occasion by his mother. And he did not become in the least "heedful." He courted Peggy openly, assiduously. Mrs. Bowman was constantly running into them and made no effort to conceal her displeasure from the girl with the dainty, delicate figure, the peach bloom skin, the eyes, blue as corn flowers, which looked at her with questioning wistfulness.

Certainly that wistfulness was "kind o touchin'," but Mrs. Bowman remembered, always in time, that dainty, delicate figures, "baby" skins and pleading eyes weren't "the makin's" of a good housekeeper and turned determinedly from the definite pathos enveloping Peggy Jenner.

As the summer waned and James A., Jr.'s, attention did not, lines of worry began to plough themselves into Mrs. Bowman's comely face. She made a desparate atempt to reason with him kindly but "firmly." She became a trifle more emphatic. Then James A., Jr., with a look on his face so unlike her Jimmy, said in a tone very similar to her own when she "settled pa": "Mother in the fall I marry Peggy Jenner."

After that Mrs. Bowman walked herself around with doubts and fears, James A., Jr., was doomed! There could be no happiness in the future of a young man going from a home presided over by a housekeeper who had no peer to a "dwellin' place run by a typewritin' girl," who, the chances were, could not "boil a potato without burnin' it."

Day in and day out as the fall drew near with horrifying rapidity Mrs. Bowerman groaned in spirit. In the canopy of gloom hanging over her she found only one bright spot—the annual fall fair, from which she always carried home many ribbons, mostly blue ones, always blue ones when it came to bread and lemon pie. And this year, feeling that it would lighten her burden somewhat to show that "knownothing," that thorn in the flesh, Peggy Jenner, what an incomparable housekeeper James A., Jr.'s, mother was, and she went about her preparations with more than her customary vim.

In consequence, never before had the Bowman display, ticketed No. 12, shown such deliciousness. Mrs. Bowman complacently viewed her entries and she was quite "unable" to see the little girl standing near, looking at her with wonderful, wistful eyes of blue.

When the judging commenced in the afternoon Mrs. Bowman, with neighbors and admiring friends from another country, stood a little way off, her customary matter of fact smile on her face. When No. 12 was given the blue on currant jelly, quince preserve and chilli sauce, Mrs. Bowman smiled benignly. When she took only second on tomato relish she received the red blandly. Tomato relish was only a "new-fangled" recipe over which it was really foolish to "bother."

Finally the judges approached the pies. Mrs. Bowman folded her arms and waited loftily for the inevitable. Somehow it seemed long in coming when the lemon creams were reached. Necks craned at Mrs. Somebody else with a suspicious arching of eyebrows. Mrs. Backus, Mrs. Bowman's keenest competitor, giggled. The atmosphere was becoming quite thrilly when Mrs. Banker Hastings, one of the judges, drew a lemon cream toward the front of the table. No. 12 it was. Mrs. Grocer Brandon drew another, No. 9.

They looked at them, picked them up and turned them around until every inch had been scanned earnestly. Then they looked at each other and consulted a moment. Mrs. Banker Hastings cut a tiny piece out of each pleased, surprising glow over their countenances. Then Mrs. Banker Hastings picked up two ribbons, the blue and red.

"The blue ribbon," she announced, "goes to—" she looked around impressively, "goes to No. 9."

There was an instant's paralyzing silence. No one dared to look at the queen of lemon piedom in her dethronement. A low murmur arose, in the midst of which Mrs. Banker Hastings called impatiently: "No. 9! No, 9! Will No. 9 please come forward?"

Slowly, diffidently, a little girl with a dainty, delicate figure, peach bloom skin and eyes as blue as the cornflower, approached her. The peach bloom deepened into a beautiful rose under unstinted praise; the pathetic eyes seemed misty. A moment later Peggy Jenner walked back to a much astonished young man by the name of James A. Bowman, Jr.

And Mrs. Bowman, the lofty? After her first incredulous start, after a crimson, humiliating tide had left her face, met the shock like a Trojan. And there was another in store for her: Peggy Jenner won the blue on bread!

Yet Mrs. Bowman was game, laughing and jesting at her own expense. No one knew that something in her throat seemed to strangle her. No one knew that the one great cry in her heart was, "And by that typewritin' girl! My, My!"

At last a blessed moment came when she could slip away by herself. She passed James A., Jr., and Peggy, and her head went up proudly. She felt she had been grossly deceived. James A., Jr., should have told her Peggy was to be a competitor. Peggy should have told her when they stood before the tables.

In a quiet corner of the big pavilion, behind a screen of empty baskets, Mrs. Bowman wept.

A voice breathed tremblingly at her elbow. "Oh, I'm—so—so—sorry!"

Mrs. Bowman switched around indignantly. Peggy Jenner's hand went toward her appallingly, Mrs. Bowman found the eyes of cornflower blue more than she could bear and looked away swiftly.

"Mrs. Bowman, won't you please listen? I'm so sorry I took first! I only wanted honorable mention—just to show Jimmy! He's forever talking about your baking, your bread, and lemon pies, and such. He thinks you're the greatest cook ever! I only wanted to show him that I can do something. So I planned this surprise."

"So he didn't know a thing about your exhibition? Well, well!" A pleased look grew in Mrs. Bowman's eyes. Suddenly she turned swiftly to Peggy. "For the land sakes!" she ejaculated, "do you mean to tell me that boy is everlastingly talkin' 'bout the way 'ma does things.'" She leaned forward confidentially. "Well, do you know, Peggy Jenner, I had the awfullest time with pa in just that way, only it was after we married. My, it must be a holy caution to have it before! And I guess it's all my fault, because I'm always hammering at Jimmy 'bout you—Well, you poor, little dear!"

Peggy's eyes gleamed. "Mrs. Bowman, do you really mean that? Are you going to try to love me just a little bit?"

Mrs. Bowman tilted the eager face. "I'm thinkin' it'll be a little more than a 'little bit,' little girl!" She paused. "My land, Peggy Jenner," she continued, "if you only knew how glad I am I won't have to resist those eyes of yours any longer!"

We're sorry Europe is puzzled, but Bryan is just as much of a puzzle over here.

This is no time for pessimism. The real race for the pennant is yet to come.

War is one deadlock after another. Even in Mexico, no press agent can say which side is in a position to be recognized.

Russia Rebounds.

Of all the war news, none is so bewildering as that of Russia. A few days ago the Czar's forces in Galicia were given up as crushed. Now they are winning battles, capturing towns and pinning thousands of the enemy to barbed-wire entanglements. So at least runs the story from Petrograd, and though the Muscovites are not coldly conservative in such reports, they generally have a basis for their optimism.

If the tide of battle has not turned, it is evidently not flowing so strongly for the Teutons as it was when Przemysl fell. True, these later developments may be merely eddies in the current. Lemberg may yet be taken and the Russian campaign in that area put hopelessly to an end. But it is remarkable how the Russians have always swung back after the heaviest blows.

They have lost enough prisoners to the Germans and Austrians to constitute a formidable army and suffered defeats which in the western arena of the war would probably have proved decisive. Yet, they invariably surge forward again.

No country whose human resources were less enormous could rally from such reverses. Russia is strongest where her enemy is weakest, and weakest where her enemy is strongest. She has men by millions and millions, and she has food supplies capable of lasting indefinitely, but is woefully short of ammunition and her generalship dwarfs beside Germany's.

These circumstances go far toward explaining the changeful fortunes of the Russian campaign. Unless the problem of munitions is soon solved, or at least simplified, it is difficult to see how Russia can play more than a negative part in the war. There is reason to expect, however, that with the opening of the port of Archangel, which was ice-locked until a few weeks ago supplies of arms and shells can be brought in; if so, Russia's natural strength will make itself felt.

Peace at any cost has given way to war at any cost.

With the administration busied with other matters, the Washington baseball team will have to worry along by itself.

When we read of a man jumping from the Brooklyn bridge to convince his friends that the thing is possible, we feel that the man's arrest is a bit too mild a punishment.

The Truth of Legends.

As every shadow implies a substance, so every legend has an origin of fact. There was discovered recently in Nevada a cave containing the fossilized skulls and implements of a race whom archaeologists believe to have lived five thousand years ago. The story of this ancient people had been handed down among Indian tribes century after century. It was first brought to the notice of civilization, says the Philadelphia Press, through the famous explorer, General Fremont, who penetrated the wild Piute country of Nevada in 1844.

"An aged chief told him that the history of the Indians in that region went back to the very beginnings of the world and that thousands of years ago his, the chief's, ancestors had driven a whole nation of their enemies into a huge cavern and sealed them there to perish. For three quarters of a century that tradition was regarded as a mere myth. But so vividly was it impressed on the mind of a modern descendant of the aged chief—a brilliant girl student in the reservation school—that she persuaded scientists of the Nevada University to search for the cave. The girl picked a spot as near as the legends could guide her, and the scientists began the exploration. It was not long before the cavern, the entrance to which had been so long overcrusted, was discovered, and in it were the relics which evidently bore out the tale that had lived immemorially among the story-tellers of the tribe."

It was by word of mouth that the poems which we know as Homer's were transmitted from generation to generation of Greeks before they were finally assembled in a written body. Legends are shadowy and are magnified by the mists of the ages through which they are reflected, but they bear gleams of reality and oftentimes lead to the discovery of wonderful truth.

Secretary Bryan will now become puzzle editor of his newspaper.

Colonel House's interview was characteristic. He said among other things that each side in the war expected victory, but that everybody was tired of war. As to when the war would end, well, the interviewer knew as much about that as Kitchener, Grey and the rest.

The South's Inherent Prosperity.

From a recent bulletin of the national Census Bureau, the Manufacturers' Record has compiled a remarkably impressive group of figures showing the growth of the South's productive interests between 1900 and 1912. Especially notable are the following items:

The capital invested in manufactures has increased during this period from $1,408,866,000 to $3,500,000,000, or by one hundred and forty-eight per cent.

The value of the output of these manufactures has increased from $1,860,113,000 to $3,900,000,000, or by one hundred and nine per cent.

The number of cotton spindles has increased from 4,467,383 to 11,858,600; the number of looms from 113,106 to 252,000; and the amount of cotton used from 749,915,066 pounds to 1,319,708,000 pounds.

The production of pig iron has increased from 2,642,720 tons to 3,054,980 tons.

The lumber cut has increased from 14,444,965,000 feet, board measure, to 21,607,519,000, or by forty-nine per cent.

The capital in agriculture, which comprises, as the Record explains, "investment in land, buildings, implements, machinery and live stock," has increased from $5,262,279,000 to $12,102,000,000, or by one hundred and twenty-nine per cent.

The value of agricultural products has increased from $1,564,069,000 to $3,297,000,000, the equivalent of one hundred and ten per cent.

The value of the mineral output has increased in this period from $129,857,000 to $401,399,000, two hundred and nine per cent.

Railroad mileage has increased from 61,880 to 90,930; national bank resources from $705,282,000 to $2,112,717,000, one hundred and ninety-nine per cent; national bank capital, from $106,504,000 to $242,800,000, one hundred and twenty-seven per cent; and individual deposits in national banks from $334,650,000 to $1,059,068,000, or two hundred and sixteen per cent.

Commenting on these figures the Manufacturers' Record notes that with less than a third of the area and a trifle more than three-fifths of the population of the entire country in 1880, "the South now has $700,000,000 more capital invested in manufacturing, $108,000,000 greater value of mineral output, $866,000,000 greater value of farm products, is cutting 3,483,000,000 more feet of lumber, has a greater railroad mileage, and has $765,000,000 more banking resources and $225,000,000 more deposits in financial institutions than the whole country had in 1880." Further:

"Of the two hundred and sixty-two different kinds of industries in the United States, two hundred and thirty-five are represented in the South. The South is cutting more than half the lumber cut in the whole country; it virtually monopolizes the cotton seed industry, which turns out annually one hundred and fifty million dollars' worth of crude products, and the South makes seventy per cent of all the commercial fertilizers manufactured in the United States, having an annual value of about one hundred and five million dollars. Of the coals of this country suitable for coke used in smelting iron, seventy-five per cent lies in the South, and all but two of the sixty-odd useful minerals produced commercially in the United States are produced in the South, which mines practically all of the country's output of phosphate rock, bauxite, sulphur, fuller's earth, pyrite and other basic materials."

It is well at all times that the people of the South should bear in mind the broad activities and the vast treasures of their region, but especially should they do so at the present stage of affairs. Who that regards the growth of Southern industries during the last twelve years and takes thought of the unlimited resources awaiting development, can feel otherwise than buoyantly confident of the future? World events may bring a transient season of depression, but not until the forces of nature herself are turned backward can the South's inherent prosperity be shaken.

Editorial Echoes.

There is something circumspect and quiet about Lerwick, until those summer nights when the fishermen come in and all the Northern nations meet in its narrow, twisting street. Then the shops flare wide, especially the refreshment shops. The flagstones echo to the beating feet of the sailors walking in couples, or else as many abreast as the walls of opposing houses will admit, enjoying themselves, but with little talk and less laughter. Among these are a few blue-eyed Shetland girls, Scotch lassies, and perhaps a few from Ireland. The rest of them, however, are working till midnight in the great curing-sheds. The fishermen, looking to the east, can see the sheds glowing crimson from the great torchlights, the figures of the girls black against the glow, as they bend over their work of gutting the herring. Youth may call them out there in the Lerwick streets, but duty's note is higher. They must earn their bounty money; they must make their eight shillings a day to carry them through the nine winter months when there is no money to be won except by a little knitting. So while youth and love call outside, they work in their oilskin blood-stained aprons, amid the screaming of the gulls feeding beneath the windows on the offal thrown them.

A scene less populous, but not less striking, is old Christmas Eve, the 4th of January, when the children and young men of Lerwick go a-guizing. The children disguise themselves in strange dresses, parade in streets, and invade the houses and shops begging for offerings. At one o'clock the young men, coarsely clad, drag blazing tar-barrels through the town, blowing horns and cheering. At six in the morning they put off their grimy clothes, and, dressed in fantastic costumes, go in pairs or in groups to wish their friends the compliments of the season.—Maude Radford Warren in Harper's Magazine for June.

Music An Aid to Health.

BY H. ADDINGTON BRUCE.

Has it ever occurred to you that music has a value over and above any pleasure you may get from listening to it?

Are you aware that music is today being turned to practical account as an aid in the treatment of disease, the gaining of moral control, and the development of mental power?

Some years ago two Italian organ grinders, traveling along a country road in New York, wandered into the grounds of a large institution, and asked permission to play. It was granted them, but meanwhile they discovered that the place they had entered was an asylum for the insane.

Then the only thing they wanted was to get away—a desire vastly augmented by the angry glances and gestures of the patients who surrounded them. But the asylum superintendent ordered them to stay and give the unhappy inmates a little music.

No sooner had they begun to play than the patients quieted down as by magic. Some clapped their hands joyfully, all listened with absorbed interest.

So impressed was the superintendent, DR. G. A. Blumer, by this unexpected beneficent effect that he organized an asylum orchestra to give regular concerts.

Today music is a feature in the life of all well-ordered asylums. It has been found that it not only makes the patients more tractable, but has a positive curative value in many cases.

Some hospitals for the physically ill also use music for its therapeutic power. Its influence on physical disease chiefly lies in its tonic value to the system through the pleasurable emotions it arouses.

Pleasurable emotions, it cannot be too often or too strongly said, stimulate all the bodily processes. Their effects have been accurately observed and measured by scientific apparatus.

There is an instrument called the sphygmograph for measuring the pulse rate. This instrument shows that pleasureable emotions accelerate the circulation.

Another instrument, the pneumograph, has given incontrovertible proof that pleasurable emotions cause deeper—hence healthier—breathing.

A third, the dynamometer, demonstrates that pleasurable emotions bring about an increase of muscular power.

Scientific experiments have likewise left no doubt that under the influence of a pleasurable emotional state the digestion is greatly promoted. This, indeed, is a truth of everyday observation.

When circulation, respiration, digestion and muscular power are stimulated, both bodily and mental health are improved. Other things being equal, the man whose brain is best nourished thinks most easily and effectively.

Since, then, music has the power of arousing pleasurable emotions in a high degree, and through these emotions of effecting beneficially both body and mind, surely every one ought to avail himself of its developmental power.

Music of some sort—piano, organ, violin, or phonograph—should be in every home, and use should be made of it daily. It will go far to keep one in health and to ward off fatigue, anxiety and nervous exhaustion so common today.

Once in an Ancient City.

Once in an ancient city, whose name I no longer remember,
Raised aloft on a column, a brazen statue of Justice
Stood in the public square, upholding the scales in its left hand
And in its right a sword, as an emblem that justice presided
Over the laws of the land, and the hearts and homes of the people.
Even the birds had built their nests in the scales of the balance,
Having no fear of the sword that flashed in the sunshine above them.
But in the course of time the laws of the land were corrupted
Might took the place of right, and the weak were oppressed, and the mighty
Ruled with an iron rod. Then it chanced in a noble-man's palace
That a necklace of pearls was lost, and ere long a suspicion
Fell on an orphan girl who lived as maid in the household.
She, after form of trial condemned to die on the scaffold,
Patiently met her doom at the foot of the statue of Justice.
As to her Father in heaven her innocent spirit ascended,
Lo! o'er the city a tempest rose; and the bolts of thunder
Smote the statue of bronze, and hurled in wrath from its left hand
Down on the pavement below the clattering scales of the balance,
And in the hollow thereof was found the nest of a magpie,
Into whose clay-built walls the necklace of pearls was inwoven.

NO. 233—KILAUEA.

It is not a matter of general knowledge that 250 miles from Honolulu, on the island of Hawaii, the largest active volcano in the world is sputtering and boiling, with very few to admire its vast molten magnificence.

When you go to see Kilauea you do not suffer any of the storied hardships that the explorers of Pelee and Vesuvius write about. You do not scorch the soles of your shoes or wade through choking clouds of volcanic ash, or anything like that. Instead, you pay a large sum of money to a man in Honolulu, who owns an automobile and parting with the said money is the last and only hardship you endure. You bowl along toward Kilauea over a smooth and finished road through beautiful forests, and the machine carries you to within a few yards of the brink of the crater.

The only adequate way to describe Kilauea, is to say that it literally looks like hell, but this description has already been used by almost every tourist who visits the volcano, as soon as he gets back to Honolulu. Upon the post cards which he carefully scrawls over a fissure in the lava around the rim, he writes to his friends that Kilauea looks exactly like the old fire and brimstone conception of hell. Thus Kilauea has been compared to hell until hell has lost all effect as a descriptive substantive so far as Kilauea is concerned. Therefore, we will reverse the process, and instead of saying that Kilauea is a little hell, we will say that it is a melting pot filled with iron and sulphur heated until the metal is liquid fire, and the sulphur is rising in yellow fumes, and then expanded to a width of nine miles. Imagine yourself clinging to the edge of this melting pot and looking down fearfully into its seething, sputtering fury, with the yellow sulphur fumes crawling up your nose clear to your diaphragm, and you have as fair a second-hand impression of Kilauea as it is possible to get.

The government has built an iron porch on the edge of Kilauea and there, at an expense of about $10,000 a year, it maintains a corps of volcanologists, who spend their days trying to take the great volcano's temperature and feel its pulse, and speculating as to the why and wherefore of it. But for all their money and pains they have gotten literally nothing. Kilauea, writhing like a live thing at the bottom of its pit, muttering and breathing sulphur fumes, remains a mystery.

Quips and Quiddities

"What makes you think the baby is going to be a great politician?" asked the young mother.

"I'll tell you," answered the young father, confidently. "He can say more things that sound well and mean nothing than any kid I ever saw."

Wife—A tramp at the back door, who has already eaten a piece of that pie I made yesterday, wants to know if you can do anything for him.

Husband—Tell him, my dear, that I am a commission merchant, not a doctor.

MENTAL HYGIENE.---1. The Need For It.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

A DOZEN years ago a young man of demonstrated ability emerged from Yale university with scholastic honors, and immediately thereafter suffered a mental breakdown which led to his incarceration in an insane asylum. For a number of years he knocked about various institutions maintained for those who are mentally deranged. Finally his faculties composed themselves and came back to normal. He was dismissed as cured.

The dominating idea that this young man brought forth from the asylums in which he had been an inmate was the efficacy of the treatment he had received—its failure to make anything like an efficient effort to cure his sick intelligence. He wrote a book on the mind which found itself—the story of his own experiences in lurid and morbid issues. That book made a profound impression among the men of that little inner circle of scientists who were interested in leading the medical profession to extend to the disordered mind the same degree of skillful treatment that it extended to the disordered body.

A conference was called which led to the formation of the national committee for mental hygiene, with offices in New York and a most distinguished membership. Philanthropic people of wealth have provided funds for carrying on the work, and the young man who started it all is secretary of the organization.

The first purpose of these specialists is to arouse an appreciation of the need of treating a mind that has been twisted out of joint with the same skill that is given an arm that has suffered the same misfortune. They want the insane of the nation brought back to sanity to just the extent that this is possible. But what is more important, they want to point the way to a conservation of mental health which will prevent insanity, just as certain methods of living will prevent tuberculosis. Very practical work toward this end is being done.

The committee has been at work for six years. One of its first attempts was to determine the condition of the 180,000 insane people who were held in institutions in the United States. It found a range of treatment of these unfortunates which extended from efficient care in some institutions to naked maniacs chained to bare walls in county jails. It gathered vast stores of information as to abuses and as to right methods of conducting these institutions. All this information, and the advice of the experts of the committee, are free for the asking to whoever is so engaged.

A piece of work has just been concluded in South Carolina which illustrates the usefulness of this program. That state found itself unsatisfied with the conditions under which its insane peole were being held. It asked the committee to make a survey of its institutions, to point out its shortcomings, to show it how to inaugurate better methods. In the end it remodeled its whole system in accordance with the findings and advice of the national committee for mental hygiene, and is on the way to conditions that approach the ideal.

If the insone person is to be merely locked up until death comes, the problem is a difficult one, but largely concerned with institution. But if anything is to be done for the disordered mind—if it is to be given an opportunity to be led back to health—there is the crying need for the development of men who are competent doctors of sick minds. There are few such in the nation and most of these are in the cities where they are receiving large fees and getting more practice than it is possible for them to handle. One of the fundamental purposes of the national committee for mental hygiene is to induce medical colleges to give it a place in their courses.

The plan is, then, to go back of the insane asylum, and to prevent the individual from ever reaching it. Dr. William A. White, superintendent of the Government Hospital for the Insane at Washington, points out a number of classes of individuals who need mental hygiene to straighten them out into useful citizenship and prevent their reaching the asylum toward which they are bound. There is the individual who is unable to reach an emotional calm after the death of a relative. It is his mind that needs but a bit of understanding treatment. There is the individual who is discharged by his employer, perhaps unjustly, and allows the wrong that has been done him to wrankle in his brain. There is the young woman who becomes hysterical and cannot regain control of herself—a purely mental state. These require the most skillful treatment that they may be saved to sanity and usefulness, and that an institution may be relieved of the burden of caring for them until their deaths. Physicians should have the training that would make them competent to deal with these cases.

There is the case of the man who loses his job and who becomes unable to support his family. This man very often gets sick, becomes bedridden. There is nothing physically the matter with him. He has subconsciously made himself ill that he may justify himself for not working. He cannot even confess this fact to himself or his justification would be gone. He needs the mind doctor. There is the individual who has assigned himself a task of which he is mentally incapable. He has tried to be a professional man when he was capable of being only a clerk, or to be a clerk when his intelligence was only up to the grade of an unskilled laborer. He needs adjustment by being placed on the right track by the mind doctor. He might thus be saved the asylum.

There are bound to be many individuals who have difficulty in squaring with the events of everyday life, who have gained fixed viewpoints, have acquired vicious habits of thought, false and impossible ambitions, intensities of prejudice, inabilities of adjustment. There is, for instance, the habitual fault finder who drifts always further into habit until he becomes deranged. There is the wife of the man who is mentally ill—she. Every need may be supplied better by purchase than in her home. There are servants to do her housework. She may have no social ambitions, or they may have been disappointed. She has absolutely nothing to do. Her life is useless, hopeless and she knows it. She falls a victim to neurasthenia and may become insane. But this is prevented by the practitioner who has studied mental hygiene.

The authorities on mental hygiene insist also that there should be, in every city, a dispensary service for those who have sick minds. There should be a psychopathic ward in each city hospital. The individual who creates a disturbance that appears to be due to some derangement should be taken to this ward instead of to a police station. The person who attempts suicide is nearly always suffering from a disease of the mind and requires medical treatment. The police are, in nearly all communities, handled by the police along with the criminals. When an individual becomes troublesome he is locked up at a police station until such a time as he may be committed to an institution. Perhaps his mind has had but its first lapse and required very careful treatment to save it. Instead of this it gets no treatment at all, but is left alone with itself in a prison cell, which is the worst thing that could happen. The psychopathic ward would receive all these incipient cases of insanity, and might direct many of them into channels of safety. It is held that it should be made as easy for an individual suffering from a disordered mind to get treatment, as though he were suffering from pneumonia or a broken leg.

"TWENTY FEET FROM THE FOE."

BY HERBERT COREY.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY, May 20.—A dead line has been drawn about Pont-a-Mousson. To that line no German soldier of France or be possessed of papers of an incredible excellence. Once inside the dead line, one may wander at will. One has, so to speak, the freedom of Pont-a-Mousson. Freedom to be killed.

There are places at Pont-a-Mousson where the French trenches and the German trenches approach within six metres of each other. That is, roughly, twenty feet. At intervals during the day those who live in the front trenches toss hand grenades into the other front trenches. Between times they stand with their ears against the dirt walls, listening for the sappers of the other army digging mines that shall—the sappers hope—blow the listeners to kingdom come. Now and then the men hurl themselves out of one set of trenches and into the other. They fight then as men did in the days of the Crusaders, with axes and knives and heavy clubs. It is possible to kill a man with an entrenching tool, if the edges of the little spade have been ground to a razor sharpness. There are other times when calm reigns, and these men shout jokes across that six metres of wire-beset ground.

"Tomorrow we will kill you, Boche," the pious call cheerily. Thick German laughter comes from the unseen men in the pits twenty feet away.

"By tomorrow, Frenchman, we will all be dead," was the retort of one Bavarian humorist.

Not all the trenches look directly across each other. The lay of the land determines their location. Sometimes they are two, three, four hundred metres apart. The artillerymen prefer this. It gives them a chance to drop a shell into the other fellows' trench without endangering their own. The batteries are hidden back of each line. Scattered about are the dressing stations, where the wounded are taken to have their hurts cared for. Farther back are the hospitals. Still farther back are the resting places where those men who are to be killed tomorrow wait for their time to go forward to the trenches. The graves are everywhere.

"At one point there are two parallel hills," said the man who told me the story. "The German batteries are hidden behind one hill and the French batteries behind the other hill. The game is to play Andy-over with the shells. From behind one hill each side tries to drop bombs on the fellow behind the other hill. No one can live in the saddle between the hills. It is No Man's Land."

The chauffeur who told me the story is a Pharisee among chauffeurs. He is not as other men. He is an American college graduate, who has plenty of money of his own and whose life has a little touch of the romantic. He is a little, pointed blond beard and cold blue eyes and is reserved to the point of chilliness in his manner. Some day, if he lives, he will make an excellent district attorney. Or he cannot make up his mind to a sympathetic relation. There must be a human spot in him somewhere, however. He came over here because he wanted adventure. His life had been tame.

"Every night I had dressed for dinner," he said in a surprising moment of expansion.

He became a chauffeur in one of the corps attached to the French army. He drove his chief to Pont-a-Mousson, where for days—weeks—the French and Germans had been at close grips. Even his chief had trouble getting inside the dead line. Sentries were everywhere, and each sentry had to be satisfied as to his chief's papers. Once inside, however, the atmosphere became warmer. While his chief was busy, the adventurous chauffeur moved about at will. No one asked him questions. Everyone seemed careless, even gay.

"They all expect to be killed," is his explanation, "and so they have given up worrying."

The long main street of Pont-a-Mousson runs straight up a hill. Every inch of one side of it is under rifle fire from one of the German outposts. On the other side of the street the riflemen cannot see the passers. At that German outpost are two or more field pieces, also, whose gunners have a deadly accuracy of aim. No one bothers about the riflemen. The gay little French soldiers cross and recross the street under constant fire. Now and then, of course, they are killed. But what does that chance matter to one who desires to cross the street? They even walk upon the exposed side of the street, under facades that are shattered by the constant shells.

"There is only one rule," said the man who told me the story. "We were not permitted to stand in groups. The German cannoneers do not bother to shoot at one man. But if two or three stand out in the open they are worth a charge of shrapnel."

He left the "Pont" and wandered about on the open hill nearby. Shot at now and then, of course. At least, he kept hearing bullets whistle about him. He didn't know where they came from. There were no Germans to be seen. By and by, to his surprise, he came upon a French battery. It was quite deserted, not a man in sight. The long guns stood in the little wrinkle of the hill, with baskets of loaded shell at their breeches. He explained that it was only used at night. By day the tired gunners get their rest.

"But I got away from there," said he. "I didn't want to be taken for a spy. Spies are judged too quickly."

For there are spies everywhere inside the deadline. Hardly a day passes that one or more are not caught. He doesn't know precisely the routine of the events that follow, but he suspects that the nearest officer passes on the case and the first available squad executes sentence. Two had been shot the morning of the day he reached the Pont—fifteen minutes after they were caught.

"They hide themselves during the day," he explained, "among the dead bodies on the open and in the ruined houses. Then, at night, they creep around."

His chief had directed him to report to the field hospital, and after he had satisfied some part of his curiosity he did so. There he found an American he knew—a member of his college frat. They sat in the rear door of the field hospital—a door that overlooks the garden—and smoked cigarettes and chatted. Most interesting talk, he said. Heard for the first time that Billy Thaw hadn't been killed after all in his first flight over the German lines. Instead, he had made six successful trips. He had been given the Cross of the Legion, or something.

"The garden was full of little white sticks," said he. "Full as it could be. Each stick marked a grave."

His friend told him that more than a thousand men had been buried in the garden of that little field hospital. It had been a convent once. Saintly women had walked upon its paths, meditating upon those mysteries which have been solved by the men who lie in it today. Even yet the outlines of the old-time flower beds may be followed. In spite of all the spading in that convent garden, the quaint old world blossoms persist in springing up among the dead. It was not at all a large garden—this garden in which a thousand men are buried.

"Not as long as from here across the street," said he. "Not nearly that width."

He came to the morgue—that grim chamber in which the dead are sheltered. Just a rough shack of pine boards, perhaps fifteen feet wide by thirty feet long. Buried half underground, for protection against the shells. Lighted by two doors and a small window. Most of the time both doors stood open. Why not? There was no one there who wanted to go in, God knows. They unloaded the wagons at the door at one end and loaded them at the other.

"Just like loads of wood," said he. "I watched for a time. The drivers backed their wagons up to the door. Flat bed wagons. Just a platform on wheels. Each carried ten bodies—five laid across the width of the wagon, and five lengthwise upon them. The driver would throw a body across the back of a load of grain and carry it in and throw it down. It wasn't his fault. He had to hurry."

Inside, the other workers took off the identification tags and searched the pockets for those little things that some heart-broken woman at home will cherish with tears through sleepless nights—knives, perhaps, and tobacco pouches, and always letters. Thumbed, dirty, tattered letters, that had been read and kissed by these men who were so carelessly almost gay—inside the dead line. Then these men who had been gay were hurried into their caskets.

"They don't screw the caskets up any more," said he. "They haven't time. They just nail the boxes together."

So they go out to one of the cemeteries that cover every sheltered hill about the Pont, or are buried across the road. Always the workers are in a desperate hurry. So many more men who once were gay are coming.

"They load a wagon with the boxes," he said. "If the first box doesn't happen to lie just straight—if it rests over against an upright, so that it rests on one edge—the men do not bother to straighten it. They haven't time. The next box thrown on will knock against it so that it settles down flat.

Usually the ceremonies at the grave are brief. No one has time even to babble a prayer. But they are not heartless, these men. They are only very busy. Sometimes, by long chance, the wife or mother or old father of the dead man comes. The man has been long in dying, so there had been time to notify those who

"Then the casket is put on the wagon all alone," said the chauffeur, "and some one is found to say a prayer."

first time Frank had ever telephoned him. On the occasion when the detectives led Frank into a room with Newt Lee to see what they could get out of the negro, Frank, according to Newt Lee's testimony, said to him, 'If you keep this up we'll both go to hell.'

"If the detectives were negligent in their duty, it was because they did not immediately place Frank under arrest like they did Lee. They were afraid of the powerful influences behind Frank.

"Lee, a poor and ignorant negro, with no friends, no money and no influence behind him, was soon vindicated and released."

Solicitor Dorsey then referred at length to the telephone conversation between Detective Starnes and Frank on Sunday morning after the murder, Frank being at his home on Georgia avenue. He said Frank, in his statement at the coroner's inquest, testified that Starnes telephoned to him and asked him if he remembered Mary Phagan, and that he told Starnes he did not.

"Just on the stand during the trial," the solicitor continued, "when Frank could be kept from talking about the financial end, he admitted having telephoned him and told him he wanted him to come to the factory right away, that Mary Phagan from Frank or Darley had been killed. If it had been, she would have met Monteen Stover.

"They tried to get Scott not to report to the city detectives and state's officers. Scott testified that Frank told him that Gantt knew Mary Pagan well and paid a special call on her. It is not to let Frank to have known that he was obliged to know Mary Phagan himself."

HOWARD QUESTIONS DORSEY.

At this point Attorney Howard interrupted the solicitor to say that he wished to take advantage of the solicitor's invitation to call his attention to any inaccuracies. Holding a note in his hand, Attorney Howard remarked, "You will see here, Mr. Dorsey, that Scott, on cross examination, testified that he was not sure whether he got the information about Gantt knowing Mary Phagan from Frank or Darley."

Solicitor Dorsey said, "Tant was on cross-examination."

Attorney Howard: "Yes, but that was what he testified when asked the direct question. I just wished to call your attention to that."

Solicitor Dorsey continued: "On Monday following the murder, when Frank was left in his office and was watched by detectives from across the hall, he walked to the window twelve times during thirty minutes and restlessly looked out. Jim Conley testified that on that Monday morning Frank twice came upstairs where he was sweeping and told him to keep his mouth shut. Other witnesses, while they did not hear what Frank said to Conley, testified that they saw him upstairs once or twice Monday morning.

"Attorney Rosser put in his appearance before Frank was placed under arrest, and was present when Frank made his first statement to the detectives, over his (Rosser's) protest."

Mr. Dorsey again reviewed the conversation alleged to have occurred between Frank and Newt Lee when the detectives locked them up together.

"The detectives were quite a while," he went on, "finding out that Jim Conley could write. Frank knew he could write, and although Conley was under arrest several days before the detectives found it out, Frank did not turn over to them an order written by Jim which he had in his safe."

CASE OF GEORGE EPPS.

Solicitor Dorsey charged that after George Epps, the newsboy friend of Mary Phagan who testified he came to town with her on the street car, gave his evidence at the trial, the Burns detectives, or other agents for the defense, decoyed him to Birmingham and obtained from him another affidavit which Epps later repudiated before Judge Hill.

"It was overwhelmingly established," the solicitor continued, "that there was blood on the second floor of the pencil factory. Employes of the factory said it was blood, the police said it was blood, and Dr. Claude Smith, who examined it, said it was blood.

"Frank did not produce any analysis of the blood claimed by the defense to have been found on Conley's floor.

"At the trial Newt Lee testified he saw an employe by the name of Duffy with his finger cut and bleeding over the place where the blood spots were found. Duffy denied this. Later Burns and his agents bribed and ran Duffy away. But we caught him. They bribed and intimidated Epps, and were caught again.

"A week after the murder Frank testified at the coroner's inquest regarding the blood on the second floor that he never saw any blood but did see where the floor had been chipped up. At the trial Frank told the jury he went over and examined these spots by a strong flashlight. The state contended Frank never any more looked at the blood of his victim than he looked at the face of his victim.

"Barrett discovered Mary Phagan's hair on the lathe handle. He testified there was none there when he left the factory Friday but that he found it there Monday. This hair was identified by Frank's own witness, Magnolia Kennedy, a friend of the dead girl, as being the hair of Mary Phagan."

DORSEY GETS IMPATIENT.

At this point Attorney Howard again interrupted the solicitor, and, pointing to a page in the record, remarked:

"Mr. Dorsey, I wish to call your attention to the fact that this witness' exact words, according to the record, were, on being questioned, 'it looked like her hair.'"

This interruption seemed to make Solicitor Dorsey impatient.

"I don't care how much you quibble," he retorted in an irritated tone, "the fact is that Frank's own witness said it was Mary Phagan's hair."

Attorney Howard: "I simply want to call your attention to the fact that the record shows differently."

Solicitor Dorsey, with a show of feeling: "She said, as strong as she could say it, that it was Mary Phagan's hair. All she could say was that it looked like her hair. All quibbling aside, she identified the hair as far as she could identify it."

"The cord around the girl's neck furnishes another circumstance. The state was able to show at the trial that quantities of similar cord were on the floor, and much of it right outside of Frank's office. There was none in the basement.

"Pads of paper like that on which one of the murder notes was written were to be found only in Frank's office."

THE "BECKER" NOTES.

"On the extraordinary motion the defense tried to show that one of the notes bore the name Becker,' and that all of the papers used by Becker had been carried down to the basement. The state produced witnesses who swore they took out the order books from Becker's desk and piled them in Frank's office. We were able to show that the basement had been cleaned out of such paper a short time before the murder.

"Now we come to the time slips. On Sunday morning, after the discovery of the crime, Frank scanned the time slips and said that it was correct, and that it did not leave Newt Lee sufficient time to have made a trip to his home.

"Tuesday, when the net was tightening, Frank brought in a time slip as the original and said that it was not correct. This incorrect slip gave Lee time to go to his home. Then Frank deftly suggested that the detectives search his home, his words carrying the suggestion that he thought Lee's was the negro's home. In other words, Frank, at first, didn't want to break Lee's neck, but later was willing to do that to save his own neck.

SCIENTIFIC TESTIMONY.

"I wish to say a word about the scientific testimony. The state's physicians were chosen for their scientific knowledge, and they demonstrated that the girl met her death within five or ten minutes after she entered the factory. The physicians put up by the defense were chosen more because they were the family physicians of the members of the jury, although the defense objected to my arguing this point, although wives of the jurors had told me they were being asked for the names of their family doctors.

"Another circumstance was the unnatural telegram sent Mr. Frank after the discovery of the crime.

"A girl was found in the cellar," says the telegram, putting the body as far as possible away from Frank's own office. 'The police will eventually solve the mystery,' said the message, for Frank was preparing his uncle for what was to come. This telegram is pregnant with significance. The letter, written on the afternoon of the murder, was undoubtedly the product of a guilty mind.

"It is too short a time for anything of importance to have happened in the factory since you left,' Frank wrote.

SELIG'S TESTIMONY.

"I will now turn to the action of Frank's relatives. Emile Selig, the father-in-law, testified that on that Sunday, he didn't refer to the tragedy at the factory. Mrs. Selig says that he didn't mention the name of the girl.

"If they told the truth only guilt sealed his lips, for if innocent, he would never have remained silent, while the whole town throbbed with the news.

"If it had been only for food and lead under such circumstances he would have commented upon it.

"By his own in-laws he has been shown guilty.

"The affidavit of Minola McKnight shows that Frank virtually confessed the murder to his wife. That affidavit, repudiated it is true, was nevertheless signed in the presence of George Gordon, her attorney, and I tell you it would never have been signed if it was not the truth.

"The state contends, your excellency, that even without the testimony of Conley the conclusion of guilt is irresistible.

"Why should a part of her skirt have been tied around her head to stop the flow of blood if she had not been murdered on the second floor? Why would it have been necessary if she was killed in the basement?

"They say the condition of the body showed that the murder had been committed in the basement. The face was black, not so much with dirt, as because the blood had been forced there through strangulation and the length of time she lay there."

Solicitor Slaton at this point interrupted the solicitor to ask the state's theory of the continuity of events leading up to the murder.

"Do you claim that the girl was violated after she had been killed?" he asked the solicitor.

STATE'S THEORY.

"The state has always contended that Frank was a pervert," answered the solicitor.

"We contend that when Frank followed her back to the metal room, he made improper proposals to her, which she repulsed; that a scuffle followed and that her head struck the machine, where the hair was found, and hurt her; that Frank had lost control of himself and that he continued to the accomplishment of his purpose. Authorities cite many lust murders, and their methods of finally disposing of their victims is by choking them."

The governor then asked that the affidavit found by Dr. Harris be described.

Mr. Howard injected this statement: "Mr. Dorsey, you frequently used the word ravished in your speech."

The solicitor answered: "The jury understood me, Mr. Howard."

The governor told Mr. Dorsey to proceed with his argument, and the solicitor read from a decision in a case carried to the New York supreme court by Abe Hummell and afterwards to the pardoning powers.

"As in this case," he commented, "Hummell used the newspaper in an effort to create a doubt that would have the verdict of the jury disagreed.

"The pardoning power, your excellency, was never intended to be used in reviewing a jury's verdict, but in correcting mistakes, which subsequent developments brought out.

"In this case the guilt of the defendant has been almost mathematically demonstrated."

As the solicitor appeared to be concluding, Governor Slaton said:

"Do you intend, Mr. Dorsey, to make any reference to the Annie Maud Carter notes?"

"During the hearing of the extraordinary motion for a new trial," said the solicitor, "William M. Smith, then in my employ, was delegated to get his affidavit.

CONLEY ADMITS CARTER NOTES.

"Now Conley admits writing certain portions of these notes, while other parts he says he didn't write, especially some of the worst parts."

This statement caused a ripple of unusual interest among the attorneys for Frank, for Conley had asserted, just after his recent release from the chaingang, that he had not written the notes, and he made the statement in the presence of several reporters and the solicitor.

Mr. Dorsey referred, without much further comment, to the record of the extraordinary motion fo a new tial, which he told the governor would explain fully how those notes were obtained.

Continuing his speech, Mr. Dorsey said:

"Judge Roan's letter, as Mr. Patterson of the prison commission says, amounts to little more than to a repetition of his oral remarks when denying a new trial.

"No envelope of the latter has been produced. It bears no postmark and no date. It was obtained not wholly in response to a letter, but a personal appeal was made by a prominent attorney, whose name I can give if it is desired, when the judge was admittedly weak from physical infirmities."

Completing his argument, Mr. Dorsey said:

"I am not without mercy, as your excellency knows, for I have been before you to ask a commutation of the sentence of the poor and the penniless. But this man's guilt was established in a trial that lasted thirty days. And I am only solicitous that the laws be fairly and impartially enforced.

"I am fearful that if the verdict in this very plain case is not carried out against a man of influence, that the consequence to the respect for law in the state will be most serious."

Governor Slaton, at the conclusion of the speech, asked for a copy of it, and then announced that the hearing would be resumed at 2:30 o'clock, and that in the meantime he would visit the factory to look after the physical points of the case, but would hear no statements while in the factory.

LAW SCHOOL STUDENTS GET DIPLOMAS TONIGHT

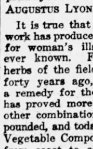
Graduating exercises of the Atlanta Law school will be held at the Atlanta theater Monday night at 8 o'clock, immediately following which the class, numbering thirty-one students, and the alumni of the school, more than 100 strong, will proceed to the Ansley hotel, where the annual banquet will be held.

Basil Stockbridge, president of the Alumni association, will act as toastmaster, and addresses will be made by Judge Nash R. Broyles, Judge J. H. Lumpkin, Hamilton Douglas, Sr., and others.

MRS. LYON'S ACHES AND PAINS

Have All Gone Since Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Terre Hill, Pa.—"Kindly permit me to give you my testimonial in favor of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. When I first began taking it I was suffering from female troubles for some time and had almost all kinds of aches—pains in lower part of back and in sides, and pressing down pains. I could not sleep and had no appetite. Since I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the aches and pains are all gone and I feel like a new woman. I cannot praise your medicine too highly."—Mrs. AUGUSTUS LYON, Terre Hill, Pa.



It is true that nature and a woman's work has produced the grandest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known. From the roots and herbs of the field, Lydia E. Pinkham, forty years ago, gave to womankind a remedy for their peculiar ills which has proved more efficacious than any other combination of drugs ever compounded, and today Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is recognized from coast to coast as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking health—many of them openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; and in some cases that it has saved them from surgical operations.

White Waists

A Thousand O' Them, All Fresh, All New, All Priced Below Worth

For a Greater, Finer June Sale

This is our best—mark you, our best, and we warrant it brings a distinctly better opportunity to select pretty, dainty summer blouses than Atlanta has known in many and many a day.

The Waist Chief went into New York recently and bought—bought with rare and good taste, coupled with rare good fortune.

He caught one maker known across the breadth of the United States for the smartness of his styles at the psychological moment to effect a tremendously profitable deal for you. We got from him waists at prices all out of reason with what we could have expected.

These are ready for the June Sale—and with them others and others—but you should see; you shall see.

The point is—this is the crystallization of our best efforts; it is waist-buying time. With the warm season still ahead of us, we bring savings that would do credit to our most strenuous clearaways.

Come expecting better things; come to select them by the half-dozen; you will, once you see.

At 1.00 Twenty-five styles
At 1.50 Six styles
At 1.95 Twelve styles
At 2.25 Five styles
At 2.95 Seven styles
At 3.95 Eight styles

Points Worth Noting About the June Waist Sale

—The notable feature of the sale is, first of all, values, values, values. We haven't had such before!

—The styles need no arguing—let a woman's eyes but see them.

—The wide variety must be impressive.

—Daintiest, most lacy affairs through to the linens in tailored styles.

—For instance, at $1.00 are organdies, voiles and also linens and allover embroidery waists.

—Think of twenty-five styles of waists at $1.00!

—Dutch Boy collars are much in evidence, usually of crisp organdie.

—Vestees of organdie in waists at $1.50 and $3.95.

—The use of Puritan collars is very noticeable.

—A smart affair at $1.50 has cream lace inserts put in diagonally in the front and back.

—One model of flaked voile at $1.95 has a big black satin bow.

—You will find tucks used in a new way on one style at $2.25—placed very low, they go around the waist.

—Hand-machine embroidery on waists at $2.95.

—Not a waist in the $3.95 lot is worth less than $5.00; from that they go through $5.75, $6.50 and $7.50.

Advice to June Brides

BY MADAME SCHUMANN-HEINK
The Famous Contralto

STRANGE as it may seem I sometimes think that a selfish mother unconsciously paves the way to the successful married life of her daughter.

The daughter of a selfish mother is always unselfish and I sometimes think this unselfishness is the greatest asset to a happy wedded life. The daughter who has waited on the whims of a selfish mother and blotted out self to make her happy will be apt to more easily wait upon and excuse the idiosyncracies of her husband.

Don't cling to that mistaken idea that marriage is a miracle by which a thoughtless, selfish girl can be immediately changed into an element of sweetness and light.

"Sweetheart," may be the synonym of good times, the fragrant flowers, the love letters, the theaters, the suppers, the dances, and all the thousand and one things that go to make up the courtship period, but "wife" means tenderness and sacrifice and ever-ready sympathy; it means comradeship; the building of a home; the taking of your place as one of the units that go to make up the stability of the nation.

How I wish I could impress upon every girl who reads these lines upon every mother also that less stress should be laid on the emotional disturbance we call love and more upon the character that one brings to the altar.

Men and women have very different ideas of and expect very different things from marriage. The girl mostly through mistaken silence of her mother, is very apt to think that life after marriage will be a glorified courtship, under the auspices and legality of the church and state. She seldom thinks of the responsibility she is taking upon herself.

If mothers had only taught their daughters from the book of the great American poet,

"Your fate is the common fate of all,
Into each life some rain must fall."

The chances are that instead of grieving for lost illusions they would be making the best of realities.

HEALTH HINTS

IF the majority of people were as much distressed about the sudden reduction in their weight as they are over an addition of a few pounds of avoirdupois, the human race would be far better off.

But such folly leads the average individual to look upon slenderness of figure as being desirable at any cost. If it were not for this thoughtlessness of ours tuberculosis might be discovered and checked in the early stages of the disease.

One of the early symptoms of tuberculosis is a loss of weight. Any decided decrease should be watched with suspicion. It often means that the general bodily functions are not all that they should be. It is certain under any circumstances to indicate that one's physical resistance is being lowered and this in itself opens the way to unusual chances of disease.

If this loss in weight is accompanied by loss of appetite, night sweats or a persistent cough or cold, a physician should be consulted and nourishing food, plenty of rest, and long hours of sleep in the fresh air should be resorted to in an effort to build up the body.

An excess of weight particularly when it means an increase of girth, is a danger sign. However, while people will wear rubber jackets, diet and resort to violent exercise to reduce, it is vanity that is responsible in the majority of cases.

People will neglect themselves for months when decreasing weight should warn them as surely as the falling barometer denotes a coming storm, that their physical well being is in jeopardy.

A small, red itching pimple is the first indication of a boil. A boil is a circumscribed inflammatory process caused by the entrance of pus-producing germs into the skin either through the pores or along the shafts of the hair. The pus germs set up inflammation of the sweat glands and the pimple appears.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS

Put dumplings into boiling water one at a time; if dropped from a spoon dip spoon in water each time and the dumpling will slip off easily.

Never sun feathers. Hang in the shade on a windy day. The sun draws out the oil and gives the feathers a rancid odor.

Scald the sponges—if you must use them—they are great germ collectors.

WATCH HIM AFTER 30; IT'S HIS FICKLE AGE

Beware, oh, take care; of the man of 30! And be just as careful of the man of 34!

The age at which man is most likely to break his matrimonial bonds is officially set at from 30 to 34, and it's Mrs. Leonora Z. Meder, chief of Chicago's bureau of public welfare, for an observation of men in the domestic environment who puts the stamp of authenticity on 30 as man's fickle age.

After a survey of hundreds of cases of wife desertion, Mrs. Meder prepared the following table showing the ages at which most men leave home, and proving that a married man isn't to be trusted until he is 59.

Between 21 and 24 years, 10 per cent.
Between 25 and 29 years, 23 per cent.
Between 30 and 34 years, 26 per cent.
Between 35 and 39 years, 20 per cent.
Between 40 and 44 years, 10 per cent.
Between 45 and 49 years, 5 per cent.
Between 50 and 54 years, 2 per cent.
Between 54 and 59 years, 1 per cent.
Between 60 and 64 years, no per cent.

Merry Little Breezes Bring a Message

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.
(Copyright, 1915, by J. G. Lloyd.)

BUMPY, Frumpy, and Grumpy had fully made up their minds that they would venture to follow old Granny Fox as far as the hollow tree she had told them about. They were tired of staying up in the tree where they then were. It would be much more comfortable in a hollow tree. When they reached that it would be time enough to decide whether they would go with Granny to see the wonderful things of the Great World, which she had promised to show them. So they told Granny that they would go as far as the hollow tree if she would do just as she had said that she would. She must go down to the turn in the lone little path and then when they had reached the ground she must trot on to the hollow tree.

Granny grinned to herself, taking care that the three little Possums shouldn't see her. "All right, my dears," said she, and off she trotted down to the turn in the lone little path.

The three little Possums scrambled down to the ground. As soon as she saw that they were down Granny waved a hand to them and disappeared around the turn in the lone little path.

"You see," said Bumpy, "she is doing just as she said she would. When we reach that turn we will see her down by the hollow tree." "Who from?" demanded Grumpy suspiciously.

Sammy Jay may have meant well in warning us not to believe her, but my opinion is that he was just trying to scare us. When people prove that they are to be trusted, why trust them? say I, and Granny Fox is keeping her word. I'm not afraid."

Now if Bumpy had been a little wiser in the ways of the Great World he would have thought of that turn in the lone little path and that not until they reached it could they see what might be beyond. But he didn't think anything about this and led the way, Frumpy behind him and Grumpy bringing up the rear.

Now the minute she was out of sight around the turn in the lone little path old Granny Fox had stopped and peeped through the bushes to maks sure that the little Possums were coming. Then instead of trotting on as they supposed she had she crept behind an old stump close beside the path and lay flat down quite out of sight. She felt sure of those three little Possums this time and her mouth fairly watered.

Bumpy, Frumpy and Grumpy were about half way to the turn in the path when the Merry Little Breezes of Old Mother West Wind came racing along from somewhere deep in the green forest. They had hurried so that they were quite out of breath.

"We were looking for you!" they cried as they danced around the three little Possums. "We've brought you a message."

"Who from?" demanded Grumpy suspiciously.

"From a friend of yours," replied one of the Merry Little Breezes.

"What is it?" asked Frumpy.

"It is very short and we don't know what it means, but we promised to deliver it and this is it: 'Don't do it,'" replied the Merry Little Breezes.

The instant they heard that message it seemed to the three little Possums that they heard the voice of Sammy Jay away off in the distance, and all at once all the fears and doubts that Sammy had stirred up took possession of them again. What if Sammy should be right after all?

"I'm not going another step," declared Grumpy suddenly, and scrambled up a tree close by as fast as he could.

Now there is nothing so catching as fear. The minute Grumpy started to climb Bumpy and Frumpy were at his heels. To have seen them you would have thought that they hadn't a second to lose. Then, when they reached a place of safety, they looked at each other and grinned foolishly.

"What are you afraid of?" demanded Bumpy.

Narrow velvet ribbon in black or colors flutter from the ribbon girdle of many of the summer frocks. A charming model in yellow dimity has a deep ribbon belt of mauve taffeta and from two big eyelets in front two strands of narrow violet velvet ribbon fall to the edge of the skirt.

Fashions for Americans

By Lillian E. Young

ODD girdles and sashes are a noticeable feature of the summer styles, and allow a vast field for variety, since high, low, and normal waist lines are all to be reckoned with.

Paris sends over the novel sash idea incorporated in today's sketch, and is one that commends itself to the slender woman. A strip of the dress silk—taffeta preferably—from three and a half to four yards in length, and about a foot wide, is outlined along its upper edge with narrow self-ruffling. The sash ties in a large bow well over the left hip, and is draped down the opposite side to within several inches of the knee, where it is invisibly caught against the skirt. The upper edge of the sash stands away from the skirt at the right side, and for that reason material like taffeta, with sufficient body, will be most successful in the development of this design.

The frock of which it is a part is quite unassuming but modish in its very simplicity. The blouse is gathered about a rounded-out neck, then finished with a narrow pleated ruffling of self material. An inside high collar of fine batiste adds the necessary touch of white. The ruffling is the only trimming used on the frock, and is seen again at the sleeve ends, extended part way up the outside of the arm, and outlining a vertical slash cut up to the bust line at either side of the blouse.

The blouse and skirt both being gathered—are joined with a cord at the waist line, but an inside belting will give the needed firmness. The skirt is cut by a circular pattern and gathered slightly around the top.

If Copenhagen blue taffeta is used for this design, a splendid effect can be achieved through the use of rose-coral taffeta to line the sash and face the skirt with. Green, chamois color, or figured taffetas might also be effectively used, or any other combination of colors, since the vogue for contrasting skirt facings and linings is so pronounced. Cloud gray, with facings of Nile green, is another suggestion for a lovely color combination that may be applied to the illustrated model.

Today's Family Affairs

By Mary Lee

"I DON'T know what to do with the top of this table," said a pensive "camping out" bungalow for the summer. The bungalow was simple, freshly painted, and attractive; but the furniture, as usual in such cases, was exceedingly cheap and lacking in good taste.

The table in question was ugly and highly varnished. Everything that was placed upon it scratched the varnish, and the wood was anxious to catch pads and tablecloths during her summer outing. A varnish remover and a few coats of paint would have improved the table; but to the landlord the varnished wood was beautiful, and he would not hear to this innovation.

This woman, however, was an excellent household decorator, and this is the way she finally solved the problem. Over the table she stretched a piece of white oilcloth. On this, about a foot deep around the edge of the table, she stenciled a border of green to match the green and white china she was using. Then she varnished the painted border with a waterproof varnish. The result was surprising. The cheap, commonplace table was transformed into an original and attractive piece of cottage furniture, suitable to a bungalow. It could be set with or without a cloth, and was kept fresh and spotless by rubbing with a damp cloth.

A stenciled design on oilcloth can be used in other ways. It is good for kitchen tables, and makes a pretty and practical top for a dressing table in the bathroom.

For the more expensively appointed summer house, a table covered with chintz and fitted with a plate glass top is exceedingly attractive. This is very expensive if ordered from a professional decorator; but if you buy the chintz yourself, fit it to your table, and have the glass cut to measure, the cost will be much less and the effect quite as pleasing.

Another device for an inexpensively furnished country house is the transformed kitchen table. A cheap kitchen table can be treated in a variety of ways to make an attractive bedside or writing table for the guest chamber. One that I have seen for a green and white bedroom, had the legs sawed off to a convenient length and was painted an apple green. Over the top was stretched—and tacked on the under side—a cover of green denim; on the top of this was set a large green writing blotter, a rack for note paper, and a green pottery ink well. The result was a pretty and original writing table at a cost of $2.50.

A kitchen table painted white and decorated to match the chintz or wall paper is attractive; but this demands some skill with the brush.

The coin spot vies with the polka dot for favor. Many of the fine voiles are spotted or green in spots as big as a dime.

Ruffled gloves are the newest fashion frill. Tiny edges of ruching run up one side of the opening of the 16-button silk gloves, but the short gloves are be-frilled at the top as well as at the opening.

The Girl's Job

Women Make Good Insurance Brokers

By Jessie Roberts

DEAR MISS ROBERTS—Can you you tell me anything about insurance work for women? Do women make good as insurance brokers, and would you advise a young woman with plenty of energy to take an agency in a small town? Sincerely yours,

"AMBITIOUS."

Insurance has proved to be a good line for women, and many women write it all through the east and middle west, and are spreading their operations further. But there is room for many more.

The best way to make a start is to become the agent for some one of the big companies, either on a commission basis or at a fixed salary. After a year's experience a special agency will be given by one of the big companies in such district where all the vacancies have not been filled. When that is done no salary is allowed, but since only the agency is given to any town for the special branch chosen, the work will be in the hands of the agent, and it will depend on her efforts whether or not she makes a good income. If she is of the right type to make a successful insurance women she will be able to count on a very tidy income even the first year or two.

Most women say that they have found it better to specialize on some one branch, fire, liability, endowment, life or other special lines, at any rate in the beginning. After becoming an adept in the chosen specialty, with several years' experience in writing policies and hunting up business, a woman can become an agent, handling the work of several companies and joining two or more types of insurance, with every chance of doing big business.

A woman who thinks of becoming an insurance agent or broker must be intelligent and some judge of human nature. She must be good at mathematics and logic, and ought to feel a real love for the work, a conviction that it is a great help to the workers of the world. She must be able to talk well and clearly, to keep to her point, and to keep her temper.

Ever wash the windows with water to which a little turpentine has been added? Try it. One tablespoonful of turpentine to three quarts of water.

When cutting fresh bread or cake, dip knife in hot water, wipe dry and you will find the hot metal facilitates the cutting.

Frumps Lose in Business

BY EDNA K. WOOLEY.

SOME PERSONS are so good they overbalance, and some are so sensible they miss the balance of power," laughingly informed a handsome and successful business woman, who actually confesses to forty years of age!

"I'm just going to tell you girls something," she went on. "I've heard some of you say that you envied me my personality and I have admitted that personality, as well as ability, are needed to be really successful in a business way. I should add that good common sense is also among the essentials, but common sense, like anything else, can be exaggerated.

"I started in my business career with the idea that common sense should rule me in everything. At that time I had no alleviating sense of humor. I laughed only when I considered a laugh was due. I cultivated a grave and respect-demanding countenance and general deportment. I considered it businesslike, and it is, in fact, put up as one of the ideals to be followed by the business girl.

"I was very particular to see that my hair was brushed back neatly and sensibly, and that it was entirely guiltless of the curling iron. I have a high forehead. At that time I was proud of it and took pains to display it. I felt that my forehead ought to bring me regular increases in salary!

"Face powder I scorned. Also cold cream. City soot settled in my skin and the uncompromising soap and water which I plentifully used seemed unable to get rid of it all. In winter I had a lovely chapped skin and red nose. In summer I was shiny and greasy of face. But I was 'sensible.'

"My clothes were purchased with the idea of service. I bought good material of dark color, for both summer and winter. And I wore that material till it was worn out. I had all my dresses made on eminently practical lines, with high collars and long sleeves. I was a business woman! There should be no social frills about my office appearance.

"Also, my shoes were of the square-toed, heavy-soled, eminently sensible type. They clumped when I walked.

"There was never a steadier person than I at my desk. I never looked at the clock. I bent over my work without ceasing, and failed to notice that my shoulders were rounding and my chest getting flat.

"By all the accepted rules of the game, I should have been promoted at least once a month, with corresponding increases of salary. But nobody ever seemed to pay any attention to me, and I was treated as if I was a has-been stuck in a rut.

"Then one day I met a women editor of a newspaper. She was a bird-like little woman with a complexion like strawberries and cream and the prettiest white hair I every saw. She had a charming personality, and I fell in love with her just like everybody else did in our boarding house.

"She took me in hand.

"'A woman,'" said she, 'has to be a woman if she expects to get on in the business world. You don't need to be frivolous, but you do need to exercise a certain feminine charm if you are going to attract favorable attention to yourself. I don't mean a sex charm, but a wholesome femininity that doesn't get in the way of your efficiency, and which appeals to women as well as men.'

"That dear little woman put me through a course of training that soon made a marked difference in my appearance—and not only increased my confidence in myself, but made me a little happier. The corners of my mouth began to turn up while my complexion was clearing out, and I discovered what a joy it is to shop for pretty things to wear.

"And her theory worked! As personality developed and appearance was metamorphosed, my superiors paid more attention to me, and from that time I have steadily risen in importance in the firm."

The Week-End Dances at the Clubs

Liberty Bell Dinner In San Francisco

The most elaborate dinner yet given in San Francisco at the Hotel Plaza was the small but select function given on Wednesday evening, June 9, by Mrs. Noble T. Biddle, who is a guest of the Plaza. This was a "Liberty bell" dinner, and given in honor of her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Knapp, of Oconomowoc, Wis., and Mrs. E. P. Chamberlin, of Atlanta, Ga.; also Mr. and Mrs. Julian H. Biddle, of San Francisco.

Mrs. Biddle belongs to one of the most exclusive and aristocratic families of Pennsylvania, and gave this dinner in honor of the fact that the Liberty bell is to be brought to the exposition.

The center of the table was decorated with a Liberty bell in flowers. The rest of the decorations were equally patriotic in red, white and blue, and included also fac-simile Liberty bells.

Interesting Weddings

Roper-Baskin

A marriage of much interest to a large circle of friends was that of Mrs. Claribel L. Baskin to Mr. Watson L. Roper, which was solemnized at the home of the bride Saturday afternoon, June 12, at 4 o'clock.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. John F. Lord, father of the bride. Lohengrin's wedding march was beautifully rendered by Mrs. Julian Lord, of Dublin. The bridal party were preceded by Misses Thelma and Maguerite Lord and Oswell Baskin and Carswell Wood. Just before the ceremony an elegant course luncheon was served.

Immediately afterward Mr. and Mrs. Roper left for Lookout Mountain, Tenn., and other points of interest.

Helton-Beasley

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Beasley announce the marriage of their daughter, Agnes Lee, to Mr. Cylde A. Helton, Jr., on March 21, the Rev. Dr. Rauschenberg, of College Park, officiating.

Wrigley-Walsh

Mr. and Mrs. Emmett D. Walsh announce the marriage of their daughter, Nellie Austin, to Mr. Williiam H. Wrigley, Jr., on Saturday evening, June 12, at the Sacred Heart church. The Rev. Father Peter McOscar officiated.

Dinner Party

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Veasy Rainwater will give a dinner at the dinner dance at the Druid Hills Golf club Wednesday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Lafayette Montgomery, whose marriage was a recent interesting event.

The invited guests are Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Adair, Jr., Miss Martha Edmondson, Miss Rosalie Davis, Miss Louise Riley, Miss Margaret McCarty, Mr. McGehee Tyson, of Knoxville; Mr. Whitney Bowden, of New Orleans; Mr. Henderson D'Williford and Mr. Garner Watkins, of Chattanooga; Mr. Walter Brown, Mr. Robin Adair and Mr. Robert Troutman.

Crackers Play Last Road Game Today; New First Baseman Is Signed

Prospects for Title Tourney Take on Change

Nelson Whitney, Present Title Holder, Here to Defend Title. Four Former Winners Now in List--Strong Play Over Course Yesterday--Davidson Had a 78

Speculation on the probable winner of the southern championship golf tournament which over the East Lake course tomorrow took a different turn in the light of developments Sunday. Chief among announcements that have an important bearing on the tourney was the news that Nelson Whitney, the New Orleans crack who holds the title at present, having captured it last year for the fourth time, will be on hand to take part in the big event. Mr. Whitney was expected here this morning.

The arrival of Whitney will bring the total of title winners up to four. In addition to the present champion New Orleans sends along W. P. Stewart, twice winner, and Leigh Carroll, who has copped the title on one former occasion. The fourth man is J. P. Edrington, the well known Memphis player. With this quartet entered, the aspect of the tournament is materially changed. Whereas a week ago, it appeared that the big contest was to be a wide open affair, the chances of a maiden winner getting over this year are measurably decreased.

Practically all of the prominent players who took part in the tournament at Memphis last year are here except Louis Jacoby, of Dallas, and George V. Rotan, of Waco, the Texas champion. In addition to these there are several excellent players who did not go to Memphis last season. This latter crowd includes several Carolina entries and a few from Florida.

The East Lake course was a busy scene all day Sunday. Many of the best players to enter had already arrived, and they were busy acquainting themselves with the course. Several matches were made up among the better known players, and galleries followed these over the course all during the day. Excellent scores were reported, but it remained for Archie Davison, one of the best of the local colony, to turn in the low card. Davison had a 78 for his best round. He did fifteen holes in one better than "fa." Two 6s and a 5 on the last three holes ran his card up to 78. Several of the visitors were around in slightly better than 80. Bryan Heard, the Texas Commodore, had an 81 and an 82 for his two rounds.

Several of the visitors, in fact quite a large number, had played at East Lake before. However, none of these had played since the course was changed. It was generally admitted by these that the course is a far different proposition from what it was when they played over it before. Sunday the players were using the regular course except for two or three holes, where somewhat shorter tees were in use.

Today will be given over to practice play, and as on Sunday only club members who are eligible to play in the tournament are expected to play. President H. F. Smith and his committee will be busy today making the pairings for the qualifying round tomorrow, and they hope to have things in shape so that partners for the round can be posted at the club house tonight.

There appear to be some little misunderstanding among a few of the players unacquainted with tournament procedure as to how matches will be played after qualification. Of course the sixty players with the lowest medal scores in the qualifying round will compose the championship flight. Then after the first matches, the winners will be placed in one division and the losers in another. Then the winners of the top thirty-two will compose the championship flight, the losers in this thirty-two will compose the second flight. Of the thirty-two who lost in the first round, the sixteen who win their second round will compose the third flight, and those of this thirty-two who also lose their second matches will compose flight number four.

After the field has thus been divided into four flights of sixteen players each by the playing of the first two rounds, the next round will reduce each flight to eight winners and eight losers in each of the four groups. All of these continue to play in the fourth round. But the four losers in each group of eight will be eliminated, and two from each group will be dropped in the next round. In other words, all players who qualify for the sixty-four will play through to Thursday night, even though they lose every match.

The committee which will have charge of the tournament to be staged at Druid Hills announces that all who desire to enter for that contest must make their entries before noon Wednesday. Those who play at East Lake in the qualifying round, but fail to get into the championship contest will qualify according to their cards there. Others will qualify according to their cards at Druid Hills. But it is imperative that all entries for this tourney be in the hands of the committee by Wednesday noon.

Smithies Close Road Trip Today

The Crackers line up today for their last contest on the present long road trip. They tackle the Pelicans in the fourth game of the series. Rain Sunday prevented the scheduled third game of the series, and, according to announcement, the postponed game will not be played off.

Provided they win this afternoon, the Smithies will wind up their foreign invasion with a record of eight won and eleven lost. If they drop today's encounter, they will do but little better than one out of three for the round. Perry will probably oppose Jim Gudger on the mound, with Jenkins and Higgins as the respective battery partners.

Of the two games played with the Pels both were extremely hard games to lose. Kelly pitched magnificent ball for seven innings in the opener, and then ripped loose at the seams long enough in the eighth to allow two passes and two doubles, which, with one hit batsmen, netted the Pels four runs and a victory, when they looked certain of defeat. The game Saturday was lost by errors, despite some good hurling by Hiett.

When the gang arrives home to open with the Gulls tomorrow Frank Hunt, former Mercer star, is expected to report for a try-out. Manager Smith will look the collegian over carefully, and if he appears to have enough to warrant his being taken on permanently he will be signed, and some one of the present crew will have to be sidetracked to make room for him.

THE DREAMERS.

I.

Under an orchard tree today
Where the summer snow of the blooms drifts down,
There's a lad that dreams of the world away—
Of name and fame in the open fray—
Of a Road that leads to a walled-in town;
And over the meadows the roll of drums
And the call of the silver bugle comes.

Under the clean blue sky today
Where the air is sweet with the breath of spring,
There's a lad that dreams of the laureled way—
Of a crown that waits, where the world at bay
Is driven back by a God-made king;
And the yellow sunshine, drifting deep,
Is dim where the lights of his kingdom sweep.

II.

Worn in the toil and the strife today
Where the rush and roar of the town goes by,
There's a man who dreams of the fields away—
Of an orchard tree in the Land of Play—
Where a lad once looked to a summer sky;
And over the city, faint and low,
A melody drifts from the Long Ago.

There's a man who dreams in a town today
Of a Road that leads to the vanished wraith
Of a summer dream from an old, old way.
Blurred by the shadows that stand at bay,
Nigh-crowned by the mound of a buried faith—
The faith of a lad who had one day dreamed
Of fame to come where the far lights gleamed.

The Yanks are beginning to be eminently neutral. They don't care an awful lot which ball club beats 'em day by day.

Chicago and Boston are said to be more bitterly opposed to America entering the war than any other cities. According to report, war is said to cut in heavily upon a world series championship and sap some of its pristine interest.

THE GAME'S OLD STUFF.

Dear Sir: You seem to view with amazement the present standing of the clubs in the National league as being without precedent. If you will take a slant at Canto 31 of Mr. Dante's "Divine Comedy" you will discover the Giants in the Eighth Circle as far back as Virgil's time. You will also find the veteran shortstop Lucifer in the Thirty-fourth Canto batting considerable under .220, though still covering a lot of ground. After all, you see, we are merely lamping old films.

S. D. P.

"I know," writes Freddie H., "that it is the proper thing to keep your eye on the ball, but how the dickens can it be done?" We've never tried it, so we are in no position to answer.

THE GIANT RALLY.

Here and there for the last three weeks the Giants have shown a tendency to rally and emerge from the grotto. They have presented flashes of first class play and have started as if they meant business. But after each of these flashes they have immediately subsided again and slipped back. It was all well enough back in April and May to suggest that the campaign was young and that the stretch was still far beyond. But June is now verging on toward July and the Giants have yet to show any of the consistency which in past years lofted them up. They have had two months or more of it and haven't been able to get going. Couple these two months with the last three months of the 1914 campaign and you have five months of ineffectiveness. This, offhand, doesn't indicate any revival of the old flag days. Not enough for the cheering to begin boomfng against the ancient walls of Coogan's Bluff.

As we understand it, Bryan didn't have the "ten-day notice of release" clause cut and so jumped before waivers were asked and before he could be sent back to Nebraska for further seasoning.

THE FURY LIMIT.

"Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned?"
Well, how about that poor benighted wreck,
Who, some hot morning as he dresses finds
A boil just where his collar hits his neck?

NOT FORGETTING THE W. SOX.

When in New York the Tigers seemed to figure the Red Sox as their main opponents. The dope as outlined by Detroit's eminent travelers was that Rowland's club was a bear at home, but a penguin away on hostile soil.

Unless present signs are highly misleading the Tigers had also better keep at least one orb peeled on the White Sox. They have a first class ball club—possibly not as strong in some ways as the Red Sox, but one is likely to pull together better and hustle all the way.

They have fine pitching and the best offense any White Sox team has shown in many years—a far better offense than the old White Sox machine which cleaned up in 1906. They have a club that only rough luck can drive from the race.

As we understand it, some weeks back the Phillies were to hit the skids in May and begin making motions like a fat man descending a greased chute. But unless some miscreant has been tampering with the Standing of the Clubs they are taking their time about whizzing back to the second division.

No ball club is a weak ball club that carries Alexander. He stands as a bi-weekly barrier against continuous downward journey—and this means more than a number think it means.

"Willard," says Tom Jones, "is now making $3,500 a week." It would be a crime to wake him up.

Stanford Crew Starts for Regatta

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., June 14.—Stanford's eight-oared crew, Pacific coast champions, were to leave today for Poughkeepsie, N. Y., to compete in the four-mile varsity race in the annual intercollegiate regatta there June 28. The crew, averaging 178 3-4 pounds, will be the heaviest in the contest. Only two men, stroke and coxswain, are under six feet in height.

Stanford has made time trials over a four-mile course in 21 minutes.

Only sufficient practice will be given the crew at Poughkeepsie to familiarize the men with the course, Coach Frank J. Guerena said today, because when Stanford last competed at Poughkeepsie in 1912, the crew was affected unfavorably by the change of climate.

THIS PAIR FOUGHT IT OUT FOR DICKEY TROPHY AT BROOKHAVEN

E. H. INMAN. E. RIVERS.

E. Rivers Triumphs in Final Round by Defeating E. H. Inman--Other Winners

The first golf tournament of the local season at Brookhaven came to a close Saurday afternoon, when the winners of the five flights in the James L. Dickey trophy tournament were decided. E. Rivers won the cup by defeating E. H. Inman in the final round of the first flight 10-9 over thirty-six holes. James R. Gray, Jr., defeated Charlie Cox in the final round of the second flight. James L. Dickey was declared the winner in the third ight, when Capt. G. H. Johnston defaulted in the final match. Dr. W. S. Elkin won the fourth flight, disposing of L. D. T. Quimby in the final match, and Major John S. Cohen won the fifth flight cup by defeating S. E. Taylor.

This tournament brought out a large field of entrants, and play throughout was spirited. The golf committee in charge of the tourney, and "Scotty" McKenzie, professional a the course, were highly praised by the players for the manner in which the tourney was handled, as well as the condition in which the course had been put for this opening contest. A ringer tournament is in progress over the course at present. This week a tournament for ladies will be staged and another tournament for male members will be staged shortly after the conclusion of the big southern championship event, which begins at East Lake tomorrow.

Crackers Get First Baseman

Manager Bill Smith's Macedonian cry has been heard as far away as St. Louis, and as a result Manager Branch Rickey has agreed to lend a hand to keep the Crackers from perishing, to continue the metaphor. Accordingly First Baseman Kauffman will report to the club here Wednesday.

Kauffman has been carried by the Browns thus far, but last season he played in the New York State league. His best achievement there was to lead the hitters of the league with a mark of .329. Jenkins, Rumler and others who formerly played with the Browns consider the youngster a great young player and believe that he will make a very valuable man. He will doubtless be sent in at first as soon as he arrives.

Holmquist Wins Unusual Game

Only Twenty-Nine Batsmen Faced Gull Hurler--Vols Defeat Lookouts--Memphis-Little Rock Rain

MOBILE, Ala., June 14.—Holmquist pitched a remarkable game for Mobile yesterday, and Birmingham was beaten, 3 to 0. Only twenty-nine batsmen faced Holmquist, the visitors going out in order except in the second, when Magee singled, and the ninth, when Robertson walked. Mobile played sensational ball in the field, and ran wild on the bases. Hale failing to stop one of seven steals.

Mobile	3	6	1

Batteries—Robertson and Hale; Holmquist and Schmidt.

Vols 5, Lookouts 1

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 14.—Rube Kissinger yesterday won his fourth straight game, giving Nashville an easy game from Chattanooga, 5 to 1. The single run made by Chattanooga was a home run over the right field fence. Johnston was knocked unconscious in the sixth when one of Kissinger's fast ones struck him in the temple. He was carried from the field, but revived. All of Nashville's runs were made after two were out.

Disbrow Wins Race

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 14.—Louis Disbrow won the 100-mile $5,000 sweepstakes free-for-all automobile race from a field of eleven starters here yesterday. Eddie Hearne finished second and John Raimy third. Time, 1:36:36.

April 6, 1840: A company of Santa Fe traders with 40 wagons and a quantity of gold and silver, arrived lately at Independence, Missouri, on a return trip.

1840—1915

Seventy five years ago

when caravans of traders were a common sight, the foundation of the Lemp business was laid—the oldest brewery in America with a national patronage.

It is logical that seventy five years effort wholly devoted to the making of fine beers should result in superfine

"The choicest product of the brewer's art"

FALSTAFF

—a beer distinguished from all others by its marked superior flavor, uniformly maintained.

Beer is a food. Bread and beer are made of the same materials; cereals, yeast and water. Bread is solid, beer is liquid—both are highly nourishing. Physicians prescribe beer to produce energy, build tissue and strengthen nerves. Good beer is the elixir of life.

The Real Estate Field

No Real Estate Announcements Made Monday and Building Was Also Quiet--Comparison Between Last Week and Corresponding Period a Year Ago, However, Shows a Slight Increase in Value of Real Estate Transfers

No real estate announcements were made on Monday, and the building line was also quiet, a $3,000 dwelling being the main permit during the morning.

The fact that there is a fair volume of small business going on is shown in the transfers, and in the weekly comparison of the Fulton County Daily Report.

This comparison shows that during the past week the value of real estate transfers, which includes warranty deeds and bonds for title, was slightly in excess of the corresponding week in 1914.

A good many of the new sales escape notice because they go to record in the form of warranty deeds.

The public is beginning to recover from the first shock of the Lusitania, but there is still considerable hesitancy, although few people now expect any complications between this country and Germany.

SCHOOL BOARD TO NAME TEACHING FORCE MONDAY

Principals and Supervisors Also Will Be Selected at Meeting Today

The city board of education Monday afternoon will elect the teaching force of the Atlanta public schools for the forthcoming scholastic year.

For a week or more the ad interim superintendent, L. M. Landrum, with the teachers' committee of the board, has been going over with the school principals and the various supervisors the work of all teachers last year and the applicants for new teachers' places, and as the result of these conferences a list of teachers has been made up and will be submitted to the board by Mr. Landrum Monday afternoon in the form of nominations.

There will also be submitted to the board, in the same form, a list of principals, supervisors, high school teachers, etc., and the board will pass on the entire list, probably going into the night before they finish.

The board will not elect an assistant superintendent Monday afternoon. The plan of the board is to let Prof. M. L. Brittain, when he becomes superintendent, make a nomination for assistant, and the board will follow his nomination.

Previous to electing the teaching force Monday afternoon the board will consider a resolution providing for a readjustment of the salary system.

CITY PLAYGROUNDS OPEN FOR THE 1915 SEASON

Thousands of Children Sing "Star Spangled Banner" as Flags Are Raised

Several thousand children were gathered at the thirteen municipal playgrounds Monday morning at 9 o'clock, when thirteen American flags were raised, while little voices sang the "Star-Spangled Banner."

The ceremony marked the formal opening of the city playgrounds for the 1915 season. The playgrounds, each in charge of a director and an assistant, will be open each week day from 9 to 11.30 a. m. and from 3 to 6:30 p. m.

The directors and assistants have been attending for a number of weeks a normal class conducted by Mrs. Florence M. Tibbets, supervisor, and they have learned many new games, which they will teach the children during the year.

MRS. FRANCES BELLAMY DIED MONDAY MORNING

Mrs. Frances Lindsay Bellamy, a long resident of Atlanta, died at her home, 92 East Linden street, Monday morning about 10 o'clock. She was born in North Carolina eighty-one years ago, and had made her home in Atlanta for about forty years.

Surviving her is her daughter, Miss Minnie L. Bellamy; one sister, Mrs. A. E. Neill, of Atlanta; two brothers, S. C. and R. C. Lindsay, of Pittsview, Ala. The funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Your Money

WHAT AN AVERAGE MAN SPENT IN SEVEN YEARS.

By JOHN M. OSKISON.

On a broad sheet of paper I have before me the budget of expenditures of a correspondent during the seven years from 1908 to 1915. It is from a man now sixty-seven years old; it covers the years of his wife's last serious illness. Evidently it is from a man who has owned his home (subject to a mortgage). It is the record of an educated and straight living man.

This record is of great interest to me as a light on the cost of decent living.

In 1908 these items of expenditure were set down: Payment on the mortgage, $1,300; interest, $214.82; groceries, $307.86; taxes and repairs, $204.34; coal, $45.45; church $20.50; newspapers, etc., $13.10; gas $23.93; life insurance $104.16; personal expenses, $38,30; doctor and medicines, $12.17; clothing, $13.76; and miscellaneous, $147.47. The year's total was $2,445.86.

Next year the interest charge was cut to $180; a telephone was installed and cost $12.30; taxes and repairs fell to $147.36; coal rose to $65.15; doctor and medicines cost $54.09; and clothing cost $96.34. The sum of the year's expenditures fell to $1,187.21.

In 1910 the changes from the previous year's items were slight except that for doctor and medicines the charge rose to $141.51, and clothing cost $110.23; the total was $1,305.01.

In 1911 the wife became ill. Additions to the expenses were: Some $55 more for groceries (compared with 1909), and the increase to $317.46 of the bill for doctor and medicines. The total was $1,516.28.

In 1912 interest charges rose to $255 from $180 (the reason is not shown, though, to judge by an increase of the tax and repairs bill from $140 to $215, he probably bought another piece of real estate), and doctor and medicines cost $964.04. The year's total rose to $2,217.02.

For 1913 and 1914, following the wife's death and the breaking up of the home (my correspondent going to board), the expenditures were $1,055.38 and $1,200.47. In the first of these years interest took $180, taxes and repairs $150.76, and life insurance $104.16, a total of $434.92 invested to insure the future. In 1914 $627.91 was so used.

Nothing discouraging in this showing. I'd like to have more exhibits of the same sort—detailed and accurate records.

COTTON

Market in New York Closed 3 to 5 Points Down From Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, June 14.—Cotton opened steady at a decline of 1 to 3 points which was considerably better than due on cables as a result of continued covering and local bull support of much the same sort as that which developed toward the end of last week. Weather conditions, however, were considered generally favorable, while the census report on supply and distribution was about in line with expectations and the market gradually eased off some 5 or 6 points from Saturday's finals under scattering liquidation.

The market remained very quiet during the middle of the day, but there was enough scattered covering to rally prices to about Saturday's closing and the undertone was steady. Detailed weather reports showed heavy rains in central sections of the belt and may have promoted some covering, although they were not generally considered harmful.

There was practically no change in the market during the early afternoon with October contracts ruling around 9.85, or about 5 points under Saturday's closing figures.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, June 14.—Poor cables offset the effect of heavy rains in the belt in the early trading in cotton today. Offerings were not well received and half an hour from the opening prices were 4 to 5 points under Saturday's close.

Expectations of more rain in the belt increased the demand and toward noon the strongest months were 1 to 2 points over Saturday's final quotations.

COTTON MARKET OPINIONS

Jay, Bond & Co.: Crop reports in the main are favorable, but so far they are non-productive as a selling factor.

Chapin & Co.: Trading market within a moderate range of prices from the current level, in which further advances are likely to prove only temporary.

Orvis Bros.: Any change in values must be a bullish factor.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, June 14.—Liverpool was disappointing this morning, showing futures about 5 points lower than due and spot prices 5 points lower; sales, however, fairly large; total 8,000 bales.

The census report was as expected, bullish on consumption, bearish on stocks. Our mills consumed during May 494,000, against 467,000 last year. So far this season they have consumed 4,586,000, against 4,732,000 last year.

Stocks in manufacturers' hands, 1,799,000, against 1,366,000 last year. These stocks decreased 33,000 during May, against a decrease last year of 206,000, showing that our mills keep better supplied, the attraction being either the low prices of cotton, or larger forward engagements.

With the exception of Texas, rain was general over the belt over Sunday. Precipitation was heavy in the lower central states. Indications are for unsettled and showery weather, except probably fair over North Carolina.

Except for increased danger of weevil damage, such weather is now considered favorable as the crop has been sufficiently cleaned and the plant is well enough advanced to stand the rains. General crop reports are satisfactory. Rapid development is reported with the warm moist weather. Blooms are reported in some of the southern portions of the belt.

The market eased a few points at the start in sympathy with Liverpool, but showed a good steady undertone. Trading settled around 9.60 for October. There is no pressure to sell either in futures or spots.

THEATERS

Of all the famous books written by Marie Corelli, none has attained the world-wide fame of "Wormword," now picturized with an all-star cast of Broadway favorites. The novel literally turned the world upside down with discussion and was responsible for the United States law which bars the importation of absinthe in any form to this country. The story it tells is a strikingly absorbing one and brimming with dramatic power and force. In the picturization the novel gains tremendously in strength and interest as no expense or effort has been spared to make of "Wormwood" the picture of the year.

One of the most noteworthy casts, in every sense of those words, in this production to be shown at the Strand Monday and Tuesday of this week.

FORM AN AGREEMENT WITH TRADE BOARDS

An arrangement for the exchange of courtesies with more than 100 trade boards in cities over the coutnry, especially in the west, has been arranged by the Atlanta chamber of commerce.

Members of the local body, on presentation of their membership cards at the headquarters of the trade bodies in other cities, will be the recipients of many courtesies, as will be the members of other boards when they visit Atlanta.

STOCKS

Union Pacific, Reading, Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Federal Smelting Heavy

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, June 14.—Obscure specialties whose products are being extensively used in the manufacture of war supplies again were conspicuously strong at the opening of today's market. Federal mining common and preferred, the features of last Saturday's session, rose 5 points or more and United States Reduction common and preferred, gained as much, soon extending their advances to almost 6 and 8 points respectively. Other war stocks and metal issues rose 1 to 2 points, but United States Steel was the only favorite to manifest underlying strength, advancing a point after opening with a small fractional decline.

Trading became more quiet in the afternoon, but the market lost none of its professional character. The rise in the specialties field to enlist outside interest. American Can sold at a new high record of 47½.

Bonds were firm.

Sharp recessions occurred in the late dealings, the entire list falling materially under Saturday.

The closing was heavy.

GRAIN

Wheat Closed 3 Cents Down, Corn and Oats Steady, Pork and Sides Weak

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, June 1.—Wheat hardened today, influenced by strength at Liverpool, less favorable crop reports from abroad and by unsettled weather southwest. After opening unchanged to ⅞ higher it kept for a time within that range.

Later a sharp wheat decline took place owing to lack of export demand. The close was weak at 3 to 3 1-8 net decline.

Excessive moisture that hindered cultivation gave a lift to corn. Opening prices, ¼@⅜ to ¾@⅞ higher, were followed by additional gains.

The late setback in wheat failed to make a decided impression on corn. It closed unsettled, at the same as Saturday night to a rise of ⅜c.

Oats ascended with corn.

Stop loss selling weakened provisions.

Weather Conditions

Forecast till 7 p. m. Tuesday

Atlanta and vicinity: Fair tonight; Tuesday showers.

Georgia: Fair tonight and Tuesday, except probably thunderstorms this afternoon or tonight in north portion.

Alabama: Thunderstorms this afternoon or tonight; Tuesday partly cloudy.

More or less unsettled weather prevails over the greater portion of the country, with showers at many stations in widely separated sections. The greatest precipitation fell in the central gulf states, with the following large amounts: Vicksburg, 2.60 inches; New Orleans, 2.02; Meridian, 1.04. Miami, Fla., and Washington, D. C., also received heavy rains. Moderate disturbances exist in the southwest and over North Dakota.

West of the Rocky mountains the weather is generally fair and not so cool, except in the region from Durango to Modena and Winnemucca, where the 7 a. m. temperatures were under 40 degrees. Over all of the cotton states the temperature at 7 a. m. was well above 70 degrees, and along the immediate gulf and south Atlantic coasts above 80 degrees.

Rather warm weather will prevail, with conditions somewhat favorable for local thundershowers on Tuesday afternoon or evening.

Weather Report, Crop Advices, Expert Opinions and Newspaper Comment

COTTON GOSSIP

E. F. Hutton & Co.: Based on last cables we should open about 9 points lower. Thunder storms were general yesterday in Tennessee and the east gulf states. Temperatures continued abnormally high over the entire belt. Forecasts are for fair with the exception of showers in Oklahoma, Arkansas and north Texas. The census report on supply and distribution published at 10 o'clock this morning. Receipts of cotton at the five leading ports heavy. England's manufacturing centers totaled 175,481, against 67,691 last year. For season 1,141,547 as compared with 1,047,649 last year. We continue in favor of the bull side and advise purchases on all moderate recessions as we believe market heavily oversold.

Map shows fair Atlantic coast districts, cloudy rest of belt. General rains Oklahoma, Arkansas and east of the Mississippi river, heaviest in Mississippi and Louisiana.

Liverpool short and very bearish. Don't expect our market to fully reflect their decline. Would buy on a 10-point dip. See nothing to justify bear side at this low level.—M. D. Burnley.

Four hundred ninety-three thousand six hundred and ninety-seven bales lint cotton were consumed in United States in May. Previous month 513,610 year ago 467,123.

Total consumption August 1 to May 31, 4,585,522 versus year ago 4,731,979.

Rainfall over Texas during the month of May averaged 2.47 inches, or 1.36 inches below normal. Temperature averaged 72.7 degrees, or .03 degrees below narmal.

Staple cotton goods trade rather quiet, but prices held steady. Fine cottons asked for quite freely this year and this division of trade well conditioned.

Washington advices to the morning papers declare that peace rumors are gaining ground at the capital.

11 a. m. bids in New York were as follows: July, 9.49; October, 9.85; January, 10.17.

10 a. m. bids in New Orleans were: July, 9.21; October, 9.60; January, 9.92.

Temple, Tex. wires: "Heavy infestation by weevil in Southwest Texas. Great damage threatened."

Forecast:

Kentucky: Fair and cooler tonight; Tuesday fair.

Tennessee: Partly cloudy tonight and Tuesday.

Georgia: Fair tonight and Tuesday, except probably thunder storms this afternoon or tonight north portion; light variable winds.

Alabama, Mississippi: Thunder storms this afternoon or tonight; Tuesday partly cloudy; light southeast to south winds.

Louisiana: Tonight partly cloudy; Tuesday unsettled, showers in east portion; light to moderate easterly winds on the coast.

Arkansas and Oklahoma: Tonight and Tuesday unsettled.

East Texas: Tonight and Tuesday unsettled; light to moderate southerly winds on the coast

West Texas: Tonight and Tuesday generally fair.

Map indicates unsettled showery weather entire belt except possibly fair in North Carolina.

France has agents in this country to buy 58,000 horses.

Average price twelve industrials 92.38, up .61; twenty railways, 94.17, up .07.

E. F. Hutton & Co. say: All news over Sunday seems favorable. The enormous accumulation of money and the prospect of bumper crops is putting backbone in general business. Central Leather and American Hide and Leather look like going higher. There is profit-taking in coppers by those who bought on last decline. Baltimore and Ohio is being picked up. Can and Corn Products have been heavily bought.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Bartlett, Frazier & Co., say: Too much rain again. It will help wheat undertone on long side, but for long pull is nothing to expect any extreme prices to hold. Looks as though as fairly good buying of different kinds would develop on any breaks at present.

Corn is feeling the rains. The late planting and replanting also decreasing stocks, but think any change favorable weather would turn it back.

FRIENDS OF DEFENDANT APPLAUD HIS ACQUITTAL

Jury Finds "Not Guilty" Verdict in Case of Geo. Curran

The Syrian friends of George Curram, on trial for the past three days in Judge Ben H. Hill's court for murder, charged with stabbing and killing Charlie Maloof, another Syrian, four months ago, were overjoyed when the jury at 1:20 o'clock Monday afternoon brought in a verdict of "not guilty."

One of the Syrians gave vent to his jubilation by clapping his hands in court when the verdict was returned. He apologized to Judge Hill, stating that his feelings had got the best of him, and he was not fined for contempt.

Attorneys John W. Moore and John A. Boykin represented Curram; Assistant Solicitor Stephens and L. J. Grossman prosecuted the case for the state. Curram's defense was that he used the knife on Maloof in defense of his life after the latter struck him with a plank.

ALABAMA'S COTTON CROP PROVES DISAPPOINTMENT

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 14.—Reports from every county in the state to the Montgomery Advertiser shows Alabama's cotton crop promises to prove a disappointment for this season. The boll weevil is doing material damage in various parts of the state. Where the pest has not made its appearance, complaint is being made that the stands generally are poor. The plant is small compared to former years. This condition is attributed both to the unseasonableness, as a whole, of the weather when moisture was mostly needed, and to the poor quality of seed used in some sections. Replanting of cotton has been done in some counties.

Because of the ravages of the boll weevil in certain counties, and its appearance in such numbers in others where the plant is very small and young, planters have become disheartened, and are turning their cotton under and planting corn or peas instead. This condition appears most general in Lowndes county, where the weevil appears to be in its glory, so far as its destructive work is concerned.

It is estimated that Alabama will make about a 60 per cent crop, as compared to last year and that acreage has been reduced about 25 per cent, while fertilizer has been reduced fully 75 per cent throughout the state as a whole.

SALESMANSHIP CONTEST FOR ROTARIANS TUESDAY

It Will Be Last Luncheon Under President Adams' Administration

The last regular luncheon meeting of the Atlanta Rotary club, under the administration of President A. S. Adams, will be held on Tuesday at 1 o'clock in the convention hall of the Piedmont. It will probably be the biggest meeting of the year and the program will be one of the best the club has ever had.

One of the new features will be a salesmanship contest, in which a number of Rotarians will be selected by lot and each one will be given two minutes to get on the floor and make a talk "selling" his product or service to the other Rotarians. The man who makes the most convincing talk will win the prize.

The annual meeting and election of officers to the Rotary club will be held on Wednesday night, June 30, at an hour and place to be designated later. About the same time delegates will be chosen to represent the Atlanta club at the international convention of Rotary clubs in San Francisco.

The Atlanta Rotary club has accomplished many services of civic importance under Mr. Adams' administration, the last and most notable of which was the holding of Newcomers' night celebration at the auditorium, when several thousand residents of Atlanta who had come here within the last two years were entertained and made acquainted with each other.

TOCCOA CROWD HANGS ASSAILANT OF GIRL

TOCCOA, Ga., June 14.—Sam Stephens, colored, was taken from Stephens county jail this morning about 5 o'clock, strung to a tree and riddled with bullets by a crowd of about 200 citizens of Stephens county. Stephens was serving a sentence in the chaingang, having been sent here from Hall county on a charge of assault. He escaped from the gang Friday night and concealed himself in the woods near the home of a farmer about five miles east of Toccoa. Sunday afternoon about 4 o'clock after the parents had gone for a few minutes to a neighboring home, the negro emerged from the woods, assaulted a young girl of sixteen at her home, choked her and dragged her into the woods. As soon as possible the young lady raised the alarm and the negro was located about 9 o'clock Sunday night at Madison, S. C. Sheriff Stowe and his deputy, J. C. Thomas, brought the negro to Toccoa and lodged him in jail.

MR. WM. F. GRUBBS DIED SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Mr. William F. Grubbs, forty years old, for the past eleven years an employe of the water works department of the city, died at his home, 26 Clark street, North Atlanta, Sunday afternoon. Surving him are his wife; two sons, Lonnie and Wilson Grubbs, and three sisters, Mrs. L. C. Schelbert, Mrs. J. W. Evans, and Mrs. M. A. Beiter. He was a life-long resident of Atlanta, and a member of the Masons, Odd Fellows and Junior Order United American Mechanics.

The funeral will be held at the North Avenue Baptist church Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. J. D. Winchester and W. H. Bell will officiate, and interment will be in Oakland cemetery.

TWO ARE IN HOSPITAL AFTER AUTO ACCIDENT

Miss Emma Plunkett and W. T. Shepherd Injured Sunday Afternoon

Miss Emma Plunkett, of Rock Springs Ga., and her brother-in-law, W. T. Shepherd, manager of the Piedmont dairy, are in the Georgia Baptist hospital Monday as a result of injuries they received Sunday afternoon about 5 o'clock when Mr. Shepherd's automobile turned over. Oscar Plunkett, a brother of the young woman, also an occupant of the car, is at his home suffering from a bruised shoulder and other slight injuries. Mr. Shepherd's right shoulder is dislocated and he received several lacerations. Miss Plunkett's condition has not been determined fully, and it is believed she is suffering from internal injuries.

Mrs. Shepherd and their two small children were uninjured, though pinned beneath the car.

The accident happened on the Roswell road. Mr. Shepherd was driving a new automobile he had purchased the day before and it is thought some defect in the car was the cause of the accident. According to the occupants, as Mr. Shepherd swerved a bit to the right to permit another machine, going in the opposite direction, to pass, the car suddenly careened to the right and turned over, pinning its occupants underneath.

Though severely injured, Mr. Shepherd, with Mr. Punkett's aid, lifted the car sufficiently to enable the others to crawl out. All were then placed in passing automobiles and carried to the hospital.

TAYLOR HELPS SECURE SIGNERS TO PETITION

Sends Assistant to See Property Owners About Repairs on Streets

City Clerk Walter C. Taylor has assigned one of his assistants to the task of securing the signatures of property owners on streets paved with asphalt to petitions for repairs by the new Lutz heater method.

With the new heater, the city is ready to repair a number of streets which need the work badly, but council has experienced difficulty in securing the necessary signatures of property owners.

Accordingly Mr. Taylor announced to the aldermanic board recently that he would assign one of his assistants to the work of securing the signatures to petitions and council members believe that with his help the city will be able to do much asphalt repair work this year.

C. E. DANIEL and W. T. RICE, Administrators.

WILLIAM M. EVERETT, Attorney.

GEORGIA, Fulton County.—To the Superior Court of said county:

The petition of William Foor, of Jacksonville, Florida; John W. Grant, W. C. Congreve and Jesse Draper, of said state and county, shows:

1. They desire for themselves, their associates, successors and assigns, to become incorporated for the period of twenty (20) years, with the privilege of renewal at the expiration of that time, under the name and style of "FOOR HOTEL COMPANY."

2. The purpose of their incorporation is pecuniary gain and profit to the share holders.

3. The particular business which said corporation shall carry on is to operate and conduct hotels, restaurants, billiard rooms, cigar stands, and generally to do all things necessary in the conduct of a hotel business, with the further right to generate electricity and furnish light and power, to purchase, take on lease or otherwise acquire buildings or property in the state of Georgia or elsewhere, for its corporate purposes.

4. The said corporation shall have the right to borrow money and give notes or other evidences of debt, and to secure the same in any lawful manner.

5. The principal office and place of business of said corporation is to be in Fulton county, Georgia.

6. The capital stock of said corporation is to be the sum of Fifteen Thousand Dollars ($15,000.00), divided into shares of One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) each.

7. Petitioners pray that said corporation shall have the right to increase its capital stock from time to time, by a majority vote of its stockholders to any sum not exceeding Fifty Thousand Dollars ($50,000.00), and that it shall have the right to issue any part of such increase in preferred stock, upon such terms and conditions of preference as the stockholders may determine.

8. That said stockholders shall have the power to wind up said corporation whenever a majority of the outstanding capital stock shall so determine, and also by a majority vote of the shareholders to accept and adopt any amendment to its charter, fundamental or otherwise.

9. That said corporation shall have the right to adopt by-laws and alter the same, either by the action of the stockholders or directors, or in business all powers common to corporations of like character.

10. Petitioners pray that this petition be filed, recorded and published, as required by law, and that the powers prayed for herein may be granted, and such other rights, privileges and liabilities as it is entitled to under the law.

ROSSER, SLATON, PHILLIPS & HOPKINS, Petitioners' Attorneys.

Filed in office, this 24th day of May, 1915.
